WILSON IS DEAD; WORLD MOURNS

End Comes at 11:15 a. m. Eastern Time, Sunday; Funeral is Set for Wednesday; Coolidge Proclaims 30 Days Mourning.

Washington, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Woodrow Wilson has found in eternity a haven from the storms and sorrows of a troubled world.

In the prayerful quiet of a Sunday morning, death folded him gently in its embrace and bore him to his Maker.

He passed while he slept, with those he loved best close about. His broken body had gradually weakened until the last spark of vitality went out. But his spirit was supported to the last by the indomitable courage of the old fighting days. In his last wakeful moments he told his loved ones he knew the end had come, and was ready.

FUNERAL PLANS.

Whether there will be a state funeral ceremony, or merely a private gathering, is to be decided. It depends almost entirely upon the wishes of the widow who has been his ever-present help in the long weary months of his illness and who was with him when he died.

The government already has offered to do whatever is fitting to express the nation's reverence for a great leader. President Coolidge called yesterday at the house of bereavement, expressed his regret and his readiness to be helpful, and then issued a proclamation of thirty days official mourning. Over the White House and the government departments, on the nations' fighting ships, and over the outposts of American diplomacy in foreign lands the Stars and Stripes were at half mast.

CONGRESS RECESSES.

Congress recessed in respect of the memory and the whole machinery of the government whose guiding genius he was for e... [illegible] years will stand ... on the day of his funeral ... [illegible] ... his body will ... for a while in a Washington cemetery.

There it will await the erection of a memorial to serve as his last resting place and to perpetuate fittingly ... the memory of those great days of crisis when the world hung on his words.

IN PEACEFUL SLUMBER

Today the frayed remnant of his vitality lies in the chamber whose walls looked down wistfully on the last scene of a career that had known all the heights and depths of human emotion. In death he appears as if in peaceful slumber, his features serene ... composed and his square ... with the ... [illegible] ... but the lips are somewhat deeper and tender and the flashing fire of ... his gone ... [illegible]

... Woodrow Wilson ... [illegible] ... of massive ... reproduction of the ... at the White House for Lincoln and used by every president since. It is of unusual length and has a golden American eagle over the head. It was made to the order of Mr. Wilson before he left the presidency and was first fed to the S street ... he had selected as his future ho...

BEGINNING OF END

Although he had not known a well day since he crossed the threshold of his place of retirement, or for months before last Friday saw the beginning of the end of his long illness. His collapse during his western speaking tour in 1919 followed by a stroke of paralysis soon after his return to Washington had made him almost an invalid long ago. Early last week a slight digestive disorder further weakened his delicate vitality and on Friday his friend and physician Dr. Grayson found his condition growing hourly more serious.

He refused nourishment and by Saturday night he was barely conscious. At nine o'clock he fell asleep and never awakened. It was at 11:15 a. m. that life finally went out. From first to last he was without pain and in his last wakeful moments he appeared to be resting in comfort. As the end approached the little watching group grew nearer.

HELD HIS HAND

Mrs. Wilson sat on the bed with his almost lifeless hand in both of hers. Close by was his eldest daughter Margaret and Dr. Grayson faithful in his ministrations since the first sign of illness more than four years ago watched ... some ... was ... last to help him as he crossed the bar.

But there was nothing to be done. More and more feeble became the pulse-beat, there was a quickening of breath, little by little death was completing its conquest. A quick fluttering of the eyelids, a faint twitch, almost a smile across the wasted features and the spirit of the great war president had burst at last the long weakening fetters that bound it to earth.

FINDS PLACE

Thus he who had dreamed a high dream of peace for all the world had found peace for himself and had left behind a world still tossed by strife and turmoil.

Thus he again whom life had turned at last, after leading him through ... of greatest glory found death gentle and even merciful.

Thus with the soft chiming of hymns floating in on the Sabbath air was written the last letter of that imperishable chapter of human history comprising the life of Woodrow Wilson.

IN CATHEDRAL

Woodrow Wilson will sleep for the present in a stone vault within the great cathedral rising on the hills that look down over Washington from the west. And while he rests there men who acclaim his memory will take counsel as to the manner and place of his last sepulture.

The decision was made today by those who loved him best. Word ... from Dr. Grayson that ... claims of the nation ... lavish honors must be denied. His funeral next Wednesday will be as simple as his last years of life.

TIDE OF TRIBUTE

While this plan was in the making ... at tide of tribute to his ... [illegible] spirit and lofty purpose was flung in from the world. His death had loosed men's tongues to speak their admiration even as it stilled the already dimming clamor of criticism that beat about him when illness ... firmly gripped the powers of the presidency.

From friend and foe in the harsh days of the past and from those who still oppose some of the tenets of his faith came generous unstinted tribute to the high idealism that had ruled the heart and mind of him whose death they mourned.

DIFFERENCES FORGOTTEN

A great American is dead and in death the bickerings and tragedies of misunderstanding and cross purposes have been swept away in a flood of tribute to his greatness of heart and to his service to his country in its hour of sorry trial.

Messages of sympathy poured in on Mrs. Wilson from every foreign capital. They range with same spirit that ruled among the allied powers in the war years when he had stood like a rock of refuge wielding his great powers to save civilization. They recalled the hours when he voiced the yearnings of humanity for lasting peace when he spoke a vision of hope into the ears of hate-ridden peoples.

ALL IN SORROW

At home also the chorus of recognition and admiration swelled high. It centered in the senate and house met only to eulogize the dead and from there spread through all walks of American life. In Washington men who met casually on the street laid aside their every-day affairs for a moment to speak of him. History's estimate of Woodrow Wilson was in the making.

... the funeral Wednesday are brief. Two religious services will be held. The first will be at the quiet home on S street and very few even of the limited circle of intimate friends will share.

SET FOR 3 O'CLOCK

There is room for few besides the family and nearest relatives. The time has been set tentatively for 3 p. m. and the service will take less than half an hour. Reverend J. D. Taylor pastor of the Central Presbyterian church where Mr. Wilson worshipped and Rev. Sylvester Beach of Princeton N. J. whose church he attended while a college president, will conduct the simple rites of the Presbyterian church.

From the house the casket will be carried ... the ... way to the Cathedral grounds where services will be held at Bethlehem Chapel. The Cathedral is hardly half completed. Looking up from the city its carved walls are as yet but a suggestion of the ... bulk of the building that will one day dominate from the hill ... on which it stands the spreading life of ... city below.

END PARTISAN DEBATE

Congress ... the touch ... partisan d... out of respect for the ... Woodrow Wilson.

Both houses met at noon but it was only so that their leaders might pay tribute to the fallen chief and pass resolutions commensurate with his services.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts Republican leader and one of Mr. Wilson's political foes joined with Senator Robinson of Arkansas Democratic leader in the senate eulogies.

LODGE'S TRIBUTE

"In sympathy and sorrow and with every mark of homage" said Senator Lodge "we stand with bowed heads in solemn recognition of this event ... so sad and momentous which has thus come upon us in the wisdom of the overruling providence."

The said Republican senators had heard with profound sorrow the announcement of Mr. Wilson's death.

Mr. Wilson was ... man of remarkable ability and of strong character. Through laborious years of thought and study he devoted himself to ... [illegible] historical subjects and economic questions. The theory and science of politics and government commanded his especial interest.

FRESH FLOWERS.

Washington, Feb. 4—Hanging on the big door of the home in which Woodrow Wilson spent his last days is a streamer of fresh yellow jonquils mignonettes and forsythia with a yellow crepe sash and a green fern background the whole bound around with a metallic ribbon.

Each hour these flowers a sign of death within are replaced with fresh ones.

RICHMOND WANTS TOMB

Richmond Va., Feb. 4—A resolution requesting Mrs. Woodrow Wilson to permit the body of America's war time president to be interred in Hollywood Cemetery here where many other famous Virginians are buried was adopted today by the Virginia general assembly.

Wilson Funeral On Wednesday

Washington, Feb. 4—(AP)—Tentative plans for the funeral of Woodrow Wilson, as announced by Dr. Grayson, provide for a brief private service at the S street residence at 3 p. m. Wednesday.

This service will be followed by another at 3:30 at Bethlehem Chapel in the Cathedral at Mount St. Albans, where the body will be placed in vault until arrangements have been made as to a final resting place.

It was decided not to hold a state funeral, as proposed by some, or to have the body lie in state at the Capitol.

The services will be conducted both at the home and at the chapel by the Rev. J. S. Taylor pastor of the Central Presbyterian church which Mr. Wilson attended Reverend Sylvester Beach of Princeton, N. J. who was Mr. Wilson's pastor there and Bishop Freeman of Washington.

Grayson Gave News of Wilson's Death to Newspaper Men

Washington, Feb. 4—It was exactly 11:15 a. m. ... [illegible] ... the last ... of ... Mr. Wilson's ... A few minutes later Dr. Grayson ... watched all night ... outside came to the front door of the house on ... and ... the newspaper correspondents who had been keeping ... many hours.

"Mr. Wilson is dead," Dr. Grayson said. "He died at 11:15."

He supplemented the first announcement with a written statement which he had hurriedly prepared as follows:

"Mr. Wilson died at 11:15 o'clock this morning. His heart action became feebler and feebler and the heart muscles were so fatigued that they refused to act any longer.

APPROACHING ... PARALYSIS

"The end came peacefully. The remote causes of death lie in his ill health which began more than four years ago, namely arterio sclerosis and hemiplegia. The immediate cause of death was exhaustion following a digestive disturbance which began in the early part of last week but did not reach an acute stage until the early morning hours of Feb. 1.

(Signed), CARY T. GRAYSON

Dr. Grayson was in tears as he read the statement.

SYMPATHY GOES OUT TO WIDOW

Mrs. Wilson, Sad-Hearted, Rides Over Memory Haunted Streets.

Washington, Feb. 4—(AP)—A sad hearted woman stepped from the Wilson home today to ride over streets that must have been filled for her with poignant memories. It was Mrs. Wilson's first release from the sorrowful home surroundings where she stood a tower of strength and tenderest devotion to the end.

Everywhere when she was recognized silent sympathy and admiration was poured out for her.

Margaret Wilson and Admiral Cary T. Grayson rode with her. The skies were cloudless and winter lent only a bracing tang of cold. The grief stricken woman had need for nature's tonic.

Through all the tidings that came from the Wilson home as the former president slowly sank there ran a word of admiration for the high courage of the woman who has given so lavishly of her strength during the long years of illness and paid those who stood with her in the last struggle.

SAYS TAX PLAN IS MISLEADING

Representative Garner Charges Mellon with Gross Mistakes.

Washington, Feb. 4—Secretary Mellon was charged Sunday by Representative Garner, of Texas ranking Democrat on the House ways and means committee with resorting to misleading estimates to bolster up his position on tax revision and to discredit the tax plan of the Democrats.

Replying in a formal statement to the prediction made yesterday by Mr. Mellon that adoption of the Democratic program would mean a loss of more than $600,000,000 in governmental revenue Mr. Garner said:

ARE INACCURATE

"I have never questioned Mr. Mellon's integrity, but his estimates in the past have proven grossly inaccurate. It is clear that Mr. Mellon's object is to reduce his own and the taxes of other wealthy people, and at the same time decline to give the small taxpayer the same consideration he gives himself. In this policy I cannot agree."

Pointing out that the estimates made public yesterday by the Treasury were for the year 1925 Mr. Garner said that "Mr. Mellon's object is to defeat proposed income tax rates that differ from his and since his arguments have been met and defeated he can only resort to future estimates and discredit estimates based upon ascertained returns such as 1921 the last returns we have for comparison.

$16,000,000 DIFFERENCE

"Then the Democratic plan is compared with Mr. Mellon's plan based upon the returns of 1921, continued Mr. Garner there are about $16,000,000 difference in normal and surtax receipts—these are Mr. Mellon's figures—wherein Mr. Mellon tries to make it appear that for the future the difference would be more than $300,000,000."

WOMAN, SHOT BY MATE, MAY DIE

Tahlequah, Okla., Feb. 4—Mrs. Claude Roberts, 21, student at a local women's college, was shot twice and probably fatally wounded by her husband early Sunday night as she sat reading in the rest room of the Tahlequah hospital. She recently had filed suit for divorce.

WILSON HAS NO HEIRS IN PARTY

Democratic Leadership Not His Even Before His Death.

By MARK SULLIVAN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—In considering the effect of Wilson's death on the leadership of the Democratic party and on our future politics generally, the first thing to be said is that Wilson leaves no heirs and no regent.

The Democratic leadership, so far as it has any united leadership, has already passed away from Wilson.

HIS LAST ACT.

Wilson's last act as a party leader whose mandate compelled obedience occurred on Jan. 8, 1920. On that date he sent to the Jackson day dinner in Washington a message which said that the Democrats must accept no compromise on the league of nations and must agree to no reservations; that the question must be submitted to the country and that the coming election of November 1920 must be a great and solemn referendum. That was Wilson's last act of leadership.

It followed from that act that the Democratic convention of 1920 had to endorse the league of nations.

NO OTHER CONTROL

But aside from this Wilson had no other authority in that convention and no hand whatever in the choice of the party candidate. It happened that the chairman of the Democratic National Committee at the time Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut was a loyal Wilson and shared Wilson's devotion to the league.

It happened also that senator Carter Glass of Virginia was a loyal Wilson man had a good deal of power in that same convention as respects the writing of the platform. At all times throughout the convention there was communication by long distance telephone between Mr. Cummings and Mr. Wilson. But never at any time did Mr. Wilson attempt to influence the choice of the nominee for the presidency. On the contrary he uttered to one of those about him at the white house a solemn injunction to the effect that he must not attempt to influence the nomination by so much as the raising of a finger.

OWN VOLITION

After the convention had nominated Cox the latter chose to uphold the league of nations and came to Washington on a visit to Wilson. But that episode was an act of Cox's own volition and his upholding the League of Nations was an expression of his own conviction. In no sense did Wilson either demand ... or command it. Wilson's effective leadership in the sense of commanding his party ceased with the utterance of January 1920 already quoted. He had no personal choice for the presidential nomination either in 1920 or for the present year.

The imputation which came in general from Republican sources and which expressed itself by speaking of McAdoo as the crown Prince and the Heir Apparent was one of the most ironic fictions in the history of American politics. McAdoo was not Wilson's heir and Wilson did not prefer McAdoo for the presidency.

HIS MIND LED

While Wilson during the course of his illness ebbed away from the position of leadership in his party in the military sense of giving commands and dictating to subordinates it was also true that his intellectual leadership remained. It was easy for Wilson's intellectual leadership to endure because there was no other leader in his party or for that matter in the Republican party who ever faintly approached him in intellectual power in vision or in the capacity to inspire dynamic emotion.

But this later leadership of Wilson's was one which was respects the rank and file of his following expressed itself in admiration and regard rather than in the acceptance of definite policies emanating from Wilson.

Since the ebbing of Wilson's leadership in the formal and authoritative sense the Democratic party has been divided into roughly three groups.

DEVOTED BAND

First of all there was a small but devoted band who continued to pay to Wilson personally and to his ideas including the league of nations the same exalted devotion they had had for him at the height of his power.

The principal leaders of this group were a few men who had had close personal associations with Wilson in the White House and who continued to be his intimates so far as his health permitted him to have intimates in his retirement.

THE FOUR LEADERS

The principal ones among them were B. M. Baruch of New York, Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, Vance McCormick of Tennessee and Norman Davis of New York. These were the President Coolidge Issues Proclamation On Wilson's Death

Washington, Feb. 4—President Coolidge's proclamation on the death of Woodrow Wilson follows:

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES

The death of Woodrow Wilson President of the United States from March 4, 1913 to March 4, 1921 which occurred at 11:15 o'clock Sunday at his home at Washington District of Columbia deprives the country of a most distinguished citizen and is an event which causes universal and genuine sorrow. To many of us it brings the sense of a profound personal bereavement.

His early profession as a lawyer was abandoned to enter academic life. In this chosen field he attained the highest rank as an educator, and has left his impress upon the intellectual thought of the country. From the presidency of Princeton University he was called by his fellow citizens to be the chief executive of the state of New Jersey. The duties of this high office he so conducted as to win the confidence of the people of the United States who twice elected him to the chief magistracy of the republic. As President of the United States he was moved by an earnest desire to promote the best interests of the country as he conceived them.

His acts were prompted by high motives and his sincerity of purpose cannot be questioned. He led the nation through the terrific struggle of the world war with a lofty idealism which never failed him. He gave utterance to the aspiration of humanity with an eloquence which held the attention of all the earth and made America a new and enlarged influence in the destiny of mankind.

In testimony of the respect in which his memory is held by the government and the people of the United States I do hereby direct that the flags of the White House and of the several departmental buildings be displayed at half mast for a period of thirty days and that suitable military and naval honors under orders of the secretary of war and of the secretary of the navy be rendered on the day of the funeral.

Done at the city of Washington this third day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty four, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty eighth.

Calvin Coolidge
By the President
Charles Evans
Secretary of State

Washington, Feb. 4—President Coolidge, in an address prepared for the opening today of the special conference on Northwestern agriculture outlined definite proposals for government assistance of wheat farmers.

Direct extension of federal funds as proposed in the Norbeck-Burtness bill and continuance of advances through the war finance corporation to cooperative enterprises and financial institutions in the farming regions were the methods suggested.

MUST COOPERATE

Without cooperation between state local and federal governments, he warned help could not be made effective and especially from the state of northwestern farming communities must take concerted action for the refunding and extension of existing indebtedness to make the federal aid effective. The conference he said could work out the program.

The president outlining "the steps which in my opinion the federal government can properly take, in cooperation with you" said: "Enactment of the Norbeck Burtness bill providing an appropriation for the purpose of promoting the diversification of agriculture in certain sections of the country which heretofore have been devoted primarily to the production of wheat.

HAS MANY USES

Such a fund can be used to make loans to wheat farmers to enable them to purchase live stock and poultry and thus equip their farms for dairying and general farming.

Moreover government aid in this connection must be predicated upon full cooperation along certain well-defined lines of existing creditors of the farmers.

"It is proposed that the time during which the war finance corporation may make advances for agricultural purposes be extended to the end of the present calendar year. The policy has been to make loans where they would be helpful to the agricultural and live stock interests but to place them on a sound business basis and upon adequate security. This policy must be adhered to in the future.

We must take no action that will make it possible to transfer losses from private interests to the public treasury. The object should be reconstruction, not charity.

BANKS MUST HELP

"If the government acting through the department of agriculture is to make its assistance effective in promoting diversification of agriculture in the wheat sections a large degree of cooperation from the local interests and specifically from the state and county farm and banking organizations must be secured.

The proposals outlined herein are temporary measures designed to provide prompt relief in an emergency situation and to assist in accomplishing the adjustments which scientific ... post-war economic conditions make necessary. It is possible however to indulge the hope that out of this experience there may come for the benefit of future generations.

PRINCIPAL PURPOSE

The principal purpose of this conference is to secure cooperation. Agriculture cannot stand alone. The banks cannot stand alone. A great amount of money has been spent to establish the population in the area affected. In this day of distress and adversity ... ought to be saved because it is worth saving. It can be saved if all of you who are interested are willing to do what you can do."

HEAVY STORM SWEEPS WEST

Country, from Minnesota to Texas in Grip of Blizzard.

Chicago, Feb. 4—The worst storm of the winter from many angles swept the country from Minnesota to Texas today with its center in Missouri; sleet and wind playing havoc with communications and colder weather having set in in the northwest.

Many cities and towns were isolated by sleet burdened wires.

The high wind according to weather bureau reports did almost as much damage as sleet.

CLEARS UP SOME

The storm developed in the west Saturday and has assumed widespread proportions in the middle Mississippi valley although the situation is clearing up today in western Nebraska. Precipitation has not been heavy.

All telegraph wires failed between Chicago and Milwaukee and in northern Wisconsin a large strip of territory was isolated. Telegraph wires out of Chicago had no connection with Des Moines, Iowa and points west until late in the morning when communication with Omaha was established.

The colder weather in northwest is due to a cold wave running south from Canada but is of limited proportions.

CONTINUE DEBATE IN CANDLER CASE

STEPHEN A. DAY STARTS CAMPAIGN

Chicago, Feb. 4—Petitions were put in circulation today for Stephen A. Day, of Chicago, a Republican candidate for the nomination for attorney general of Illinois.

Thousands of letters are being sent direct to the voters by the Day campaign committee which is avoiding criticism of rival candidates.

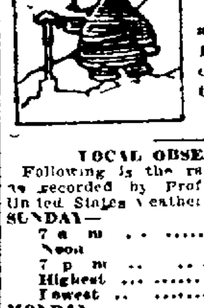

POOR CROPS BRING MISERY TO SCOTS

London, Feb. 4—(AP)— Once again the inhabitants of the northern islands of the Hebrides, and especially the island of Lewis, are bordering on starvation.

The islanders depend mainly upon the food derived from the crops they raise themselves, but when the crops fail serious hardships are entailed.

This year the trouble came through the destruction of the crops by the abnormally wet weather of the summer and autumn. So widespread and acute is the distress that appeals have been issued in Scotland and elsewhere for assistance.

The Weather

Chicago, Feb. 4. Following are the weather indications for Illinois:

Snow tonight and probably Tuesday; colder; cold wave in extreme south.

MRS. WILMETH DIES.

Kate Sargent Wilmeth, the wife of Charles Wilmeth, died at their country home southeast of Tuscola Saturday morning. Mrs. Wilmeth was in her seventieth year and besides her husband leaves one son, Charles Jr. Several days ago she suffered a stroke of paralysis from which she never rallied. The funeral service will be held from the home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Williams and Hanna prepared the body for burial, which will be in the Tuscola cemetery.

The Wilmeths had another son, who met a tragic death nearly twenty years ago. The young boy was out hunting with a target rifle and was found dead with the gun beside him and a bullet hole in his head, where he apparently had been accidentally shot while climbing over a fence with the loaded gun.

NELSON FUNERAL.

Funeral services for Mrs. Daisy Nelson were held from the chapel in connection with the Waddington undertaking rooms Sunday afternoon and were conducted by the Rev. Horace Batchelor of the Presbyterian church. The singing was by the Hoel quartet and the basket bearers were Charles and S. B. Miller, Charles Tolliver, Frank Smith, William Arthur and C. C. Romine.

Mrs. Nelson's death occurred at Danville, where she had been making her home for some time. She leaves a son, Paul Gillespie, who is well known here. The body was brought to Tuscola Friday evening via the C. & E. I., and taken to the undertaking rooms. The burial was in the Tuscola cemetery.

E. F. Thompson and son Everett shipped a carload of hogs of their own feeding to the Indianapolis market on Saturday night.

IN THE CHURCHES.

The fine mild weather of Sunday morning brought out good crowds to the Tuscola churches. The revival services at the South Side Christian church, will continue through this week at least. There is a good attendance and a fine interest is being shown. The meetings are being conducted by Rev. Mr. Walthall, the pastor, who is assisted by local people. The Missionary Ladies will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Emma Murphey, with Mrs. M. F. Stacy as leader of the lesson study.

At the Presbyterian church there were the usual Sunday services and in addition to the regular program for the week, the Girls' Guild will meet Monday evening with Miss Thelma Innis and the Ladies' Aid will meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Laura Martin, corner of South Main and Scott street.

There were the regular services at the Methodist church and in addition to the regular program for the week, The Young Women's Home Missionary society will meet Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Orson Moorhead. Mrs. H. T. Bradbury will be the lesson leader. The Home Guards will serve a hamburger supper in the church basement Friday evening at 6 o'clock.

At the North Side Christian church there were no regular preaching services on Sunday, as Rev. I. H. Hoel, the pastor is in Florida on account of poor health. The ladies of Sunday school class No. 11, will serve the Rotary banquet Tuesday evening. A card received from Rev. Mr. Hoel at Titusville, Fla., soon after his arrival there stated that he was somewhat worn by his trip and was not feeling well at that time.

At the Lutheran, Baptist, Catholic and Church of God there were the regular programs for the day and week.

MOVIES AT HOG SALE.

The public sale of Duroc sows, held by William J. Gordy in the Cooper barn in Tuscola on Saturday afternoon was fairly well attended. Mr. Gordy had arranged for free movies of all of the prize winners at the state fair and national swine show, at 11 o'clock a. m. and the sale was in the afternoon. There were thirty-five head of high bred sows sold at prices ranging from $25 to $60 per head. The prices are considered only breeding of the stock. The selling was done by Crow Clements of Oakland, and Lester Smith of Tuscola. Dan Baldwin was clerk and cashier.

Don't cough at night!

AVOID wakefulness by taking Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey just before going to bed. It loosens phlegm, soothes irritation in throat and chest and prevents the exhausting coughing spasms. Made of just the medicines that up-to-date doctors recommend—combined with the old-time favorite, pine-tar honey. Its taste is pleasant, too! Keep Dr. Bell's on hand for all the family.

All druggists. Be sure to get the genuine.

PEPGEN RELIEVES HER INDIGESTION

"After trying dozens of different kinds of medicines and other treatments I desire to state that Pepgen, the new medicine, which has a special action on the glands in the stomach, kidneys and liver relieved me of a case of dyspepsia almost like I had been treated by magic."

The above statement made by Mrs. Bessie Sockles, 837 E. Eldorado, street this city, is indicative of what Pepgen is doing for hundreds of people who live in Decatur.

Continuing Mrs. Sockles said, "Before I took Pepgen I felt miserable. My food soured on my stomach and made my mouth taste like I had taken a drink of strong vinegar. At times even the sight of food was repellant. Fermenting food formed gas in my stomach until I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. There was also a sore spot in the region of my heart that hurt me when I took a deep breath. My entire system ran down until I didn't have the strength of a baby left.

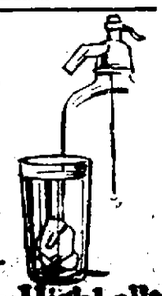

"Finally I started to take Pepgen. It is wonderful what it did for me. My digestive organs began to work properly almost from the first dose. As I continued to take it I continued to get better until I felt alright.

"Pepgen is the best medicine for me."

Pepgen has relieved hundreds of Decatur people of gas on the stomach, heartburn, bloated feelings, sour stomach, sick headaches, nervousness, pains in the back, and habitual constipation.

Pepgen is sold in Decatur only at the Decatur Drug Co. It may also be obtained at one leading drug store in every nearby town which may be known by a Pepgen sign.

THRONGS ENJOY SUNDAY SUNSHINE

Many Stroll While Others Ride Hard Roads.

HUNDREDS VISIT DAM

Fail to See Ice Jam but See Foam.

Typical spring weather with only the uncomfortable knowledge that it really was not spring and that almost anything in the weather line was liable to happen without notice to spoil it all, made Decatur turn out in force Sunday to walk or ride and enjoy the balmy atmosphere

The mercury obligingly raised to 61 above during the day and heavy coats were more comfortable draped over the arm than being worn

Strollers about the city and down town reminded one of a typical April day. Theaters were crowded during the afternoon and evening and an unusual number of automobiles were out Most of the cars stayed in the city or made short jaunts out the hard roads for the country roads are too muddy for traffic.

VISIT THE DAM

In spite of the mud and dampness underfoot, hundreds visited Lake Decatur to view the spectacle of the ice breaking up and going over the dam As an example of an ice-jam, the sight was a total failure, but the view of the lake was well worth going to see

Visitors to Lake Decatur Sunday who took the time to watch the water as it poured over the dam saw a beautiful sight and in mind were carried back to the joys of childhood's soap bubble days but with the pan of suds much larger than the one childhood used

NO ICE NEAR DAM

The water flowed out from under the ice on the east side of the county bridge found clear water on the west side and going over the dam was churned into a great mass of foam At first sight of the waters below the dam one wondered what small birds all white were on the lake this mild February day and then realized that the white birds were bits of this foam which were being blown about by the wind The foam rode down stream a slight distance only when the south breeze struck it and lifted it in little bits to flutter on the wind like so many little birds on wing Some of the bits of foam would roll over and over to the north as though engaged in a fascinating game Occasionally a big piece of foam found the wind under it in such a way that it sailed high in the air and then dropped down on the water and sailed away

White and beautiful in the sunlight it was a sight which those who had the pleasure of seeing it will not forget soon It was just another charm which a body of water has for those who love to watch it

"BLESSED WITH PERFECT HEALTH BY INTERNAL BATHING"

Miss Emma F de Merritt of 615 15th St., Sacramento Cal., writes to the Tyrrell Hygienic Institute of New York

"Since using the J B L Cascade' I can do things I would not have attempted before I do not get tired or worn out and that awful heavy feeling has entirely disappeared from my head"

The J B L Cascade' cleanses the lower intestine its entire length and keeps it always free of poisonous waste

Thousands testify that Constipation, Indigestion, Stomach Troubles, Biliousness, Headaches and all the many serious troubles which they cause are absolutely relieved and prevented by this Nature Treatment.

MINISTERS SPEAK OF WILSON DEATH

Tribute Paid in Decatur Churches.

That the death of Woodrow Wilson was in the minds of the ministers of Decatur churches was shown Sunday, in the fact that in almost every pulpit in the city some reference was made to the fact of his death and the things for which the man had stood in life

PRAISED BY DOWSON

Rev W. A Dowson of the Grace Methodist church speaking before an audience which crowded the house every available space in both auditorium and Sunday school room being in use told of some of the things for which Wilson fought The audience stood a moment in silence Mr Dowson said

The world now will begin to appreciate him His fourteen points are not dead He is gone to the Great Beyond but many things which he advocated will remain His plea for peace was magnificent, and this will all be recalled as we remember him The quality of nations on which peace must be founded to last will be equal rights It must not be recognized or implied that there is a difference between the big nations and the small one—between those that are powerful and those that are not

QUOTES FORMER PRESIDENT

Mr Dowson gave three quotations from Wilson which illustrate much of the man's thought on peace They are

The mission of America in the world is essentially a mission of peace '

We are participants whether we would or not in the life of the world

We should lift up our eyes to the great tracts of life yet to be conquered in the interests of righteous peace

BY REV T H MARSH

In the evening service Sunday Rev [illegible] Harley Marsh said to his congregation

Woodrow Wilson was crucified on the cross of provincial politics by his own country men who either could not or would not that We are too close to him today to appreciate his place in history but someday the world will remember Woodrow Wilson as the children of Isreal remember Moses as a man who led them through the wilderness

BY REV P F HENRY

Rev P F Henry of the First Christian church voiced his appreciation of Wilson in his prayer and quoting William Seward when Abraham Lincoln was gathered in death said He now belongs to the ages We are too near to him to value his life but our children and our children's children will give him his proper place as one of the greatest statesmen of the world '

REV E W. CLIPPINGER

Rev E W Clippinger of the First Presbyterian church received the word which came over a radio early in his serves and said

'Regardless of political beliefs, we all recognize Woodrow Wilson as one of the greatest men which America has ever produced His life was given to humanity through educational and through state service

Dr G A Papperman at Westminster Presbyterian mentioned the death and paid a beautiful tribute in his prayer Sunday morning

CONDUCT FUNERAL OUT OF DOORS

More Than 1,000 at Services for George L. Veech.

For the first time in Macon county history perhaps a funeral was held out of doors in February It was the funeral of George L Veech held Sunday afternoon at the family home seven miles east of Decatur The weather was perfect and those who attended experienced no discomfort standing out of doors Rev L J Henry preached the funeral discourse from the front door of the house, and it is estimated that fully 1 000 persons were gathered on the big lawn

The Veech home is about three-quarters of a mile off the hard road and this stretch of road was axle deep in mud Drivers of automobiles were afraid to attempt a drive over this stretch and they parked their cars along the hard road for a great distance Only the Moran & Sons hearse made the trip to the house Farm wagons fifteen of them met the friends at the hard road and conveyed them to the house and back to the hard road after the services It was said to be the largest funeral ever held in Oakley township The burial was in Fairlawn cemetery

Church Notes

Baptize Sixteen

The First Baptist church was the scene Sunday evening of the baptism of sixteen persons These were individuals who joined the church in the revival services which closed there recently The baptisms followed the regular service which was carried out to a house nearly full of worshippers

To Conference

Rev Russell A Ihnsen pastor of the First Park Baptist church [illegible] Sunday night for Chicago to attend a conference of Baptist state workers being held Monday Two pastors from each association were chosen to attend as delegates are Rev Mr Ihnsen of Decatur and Rev Mr Jutte of Springfield were given this [illegible] The Decatur man will return Tuesday

Ten persons united with the First Christian church Sunday morning and five were baptized in the evening service Both services had the largest attendance since the first of the year At the evening service the Christian Endeavor presented an interesting pageant observing the forty third anniversary of the organization

Supt T T Kilheson spoke in the Second United Brethren church Sunday evening and the church was filled to hear his address

Tells of India

J H Langdon gave an interesting Stereopticon lecture Sunday evening at the Malleable Iron Works club house telling of his experiences in India to which country he was a missionary The pictures which he showed were scenes in that country and he explained the life and customs of the people The lecture was given under the auspices of the First Presbyterian church

First News of Wilson's Death Comes by Radio

News of Former President Wilson's death reached Decatur about fifteen minutes after he died the news coming by radio from Chicago At 10 o'clock, Decatur time which is 11 o'clock Washington time those listening in on KYW Chicago heard the announcement that Mr Wilson was still alive but that he has lapsed into unconsciousness from which it was believed he would never awake Dr Grayson had gone out for a walk The announcer at Chicago said that the next broadcasting would be at 10 30

HEARD AT 10 30

When 10 30 the word came that Wilson had died at 11 15 Washington time The message was quickly circulated over the city Calls went to the churches and the newspaper offices In the opening prayers at several of the churches where services started at 10 30 o 10 45 mention was made of the passing of the former President

A short time after the radio broadcast had been heard press dispatches by telegraph came through announcing the event

HEAR OTHER MESSAGES

During Sunday afternoon the radio continued to give out news of the death It was announced the congress would adjourn Monday out of respect of Wilson's passing At Davenport the afternoon concert was opened by an announcement of his death and the playing of Nearer my God to Thee and other sacred number

At another station in the evening the life of Dr Wilson was given fully

BIG AUDIENCE FOR PASSION PLAY

Turn 150 Away at Congregational Church

The Passion Play given in moving picture form at the First Congregational church Sunday evening attracted a large audience who completely filled the building Rev C E Reid the pastor said Monday morning that more than 150 had to be turned away at the doors for there was no room in the building for them

The showing of the film was made the more complete by a talk by Professor H. A. Carroll of Millikin University who told something of the significance of the production and its historical background

He told during his talk how full 60 years ago when a plague visited the little village of Oberammergau Bavaria the citizens vowed that if they could be delivered from the plague they would portray the life of Christ in producing a play once in ten years This has been done since then and it has resulted in a great desire among the young people of the little village to live a life that would permit them to be chosen to take part in this play

Sunday Weather Bad on Radio

Sunday was a bright spring like day and brought joy to thousands who have been worrying with the subzero weather and mud and slush It appeared that it should be a good day for radio reception but many reports that the static was worse Sunday than it was during the preceeding days when the fog was hanging heavily over the city Occasionally one could break through and get a far away station satisfactorily but, for the most part there was considerable noise that spoils the reception

This new way of teeth cleaning

If you only knew what this test meant you would not delay it longer. It has brought to millions whiter, cleaner, safer teeth—a new era in teeth cleaning.

Almost at once you see and feel the results. Bring them to your home—now.

That viscous film

That viscous film you feel on teeth is their chief enemy Under old methods, much of it clings and stays. Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. Then pearly teeth look cloudy.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Not one in fifty escapes such troubles under old ways of teeth cleaning

Modern science has found two ways to effectively fight film. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Tests proved those methods amazingly effective. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily, The name is Pepsodent

Leading dentists the world over began to advise it. Now careful, people of some 50 nations employ this new-day method.

No one can doubt

No one can doubt that Pepsodent means a new era in teeth cleaning The results are quick and apparent.

It does more than fight film. It gives multiplied power to the tooth protecting agents of the mouth. To that factor in saliva which digests starch deposits on teeth To that factor which is there to neutralize mouth acids.

Let this test show what these combined results mean to you and yours

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

You will be amazed and delighted. For the sake of all in your home, cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

DECATUR WOMAN HAS LETTER FROM WOODROW WILSON

A prominent club woman of Decatur, who is espeically interested in the League of Nations and in the Bok peace plan, values highly, now that former President Woodrow Wilson has passed away, a leter which she received from Mr. Wilson during the month of January. The Decatur woman wrote a letter to the ex-president, after hearing Mrs. Carl Voorman of Bloomington speak on "Peace" before the Woman's Club of Decatur, early in January. She told him in the letter that the large number of women in the audience and their interest in peace affairs would have been an inspiration to him and heartily wished that he might have been there to see them. On Jan. 14, Mr. Wilson sent the following letter to the Decatur woman:

"It was most thoughtful and generous of you to write me your letter of the twelfth of January, which has brought me a great deal of pleasure and I thank you for it most warmly.

"I have perfect confidence in the ultimate triumph of the League and am always glad to get such messages as your from sincere friends of right action.

"Pray accept my best wishes for this year and years to follow and believe me, with warm appreciation,

"Cordially yours

"WOODROW WILSON."

P. E. O. chapter will meet Monday evening at 7:45 in the home of Mrs. Robert I. Hunt, West Prairie avenue.

DECATUR PEOPLE IN TOURIST CLUB AT HOT SPRINGS

Quite a number of Decatur and other central Illinois people appear among the charter members of the Illinois State Tourist club that has been organized at Hot Springs, Ark., and at the first meeting of the club held recently in the Chamber of Commerce rooms of that city impromptu talks were made by a number of those present about the cities from which they came in Illinois.

Mrs. Clarence Jordan of Decatur boasted of the largest starch works in the world and told of Millikin university. Mrs. J. P. Stevens of Urbana talked of the University of Illinois and its rapid growth.

Among those listed on the membership roll are:

Mr. and Mrs. Bert McCarty, Miss Julia Curran and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jordan, Decatur; Mrs. Jennie E. Rice and E. J. Boyer, Assumption; J. R. Simer, Monticello; A. A. Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Scott, Clinton; William T. Brandenburg, Cerro Gordo; J. A. Barding, Pana; James A. Davidson, Sullivan.

E. B. Gates, 929 South Water street, was pleasantly surprised Saturday evening in his home in observance of his seventy-second birthday anniversary. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ruthrauff, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hammell, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Cochran and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gates.

URGE ACTION ON A. OF C. DINNER

Notices Not to Reach Some Until Monday Afternoon.

Persons intending to attend the annual dinner of the Association of Commerce to be held Wednesday evening in the "Y" annex are requested by the Association to get their reservations in as soon as possible. Due to a delay in the mail, the notices of the meeting will not be out to everyone until Monday afternoon and the association wishes to get the reservations as soon as possible.

Already a number of applications have been secured and everything points to a large attendance. Samuel Miles Hastings, Chicago, financier will be the speaker of the evening.

Dick Simpson of Taylorville, well known entertainer, has been secured for entertainment numbers. Homebrook's orchestra will play during the dinner and Martin Provenson of the Millikin conservatory will sing.

PERSONALS

Sangster Plum and Robert Underwood, of Blakeny & Plum, left for the east Saturday night on a business trip which will include stops at Rochester, New York and Buffalo.

C. R. Golly returned to Decatur, Saturday, after spending several weeks with his family who are in Colorado Springs, Colo. He left Monday for a business trip to New York City.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

If you want to keep children's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last for months.

SCHOOLGIRL STYLES

Spring styles have an interest for school girls as well as for their older sisters. The newest lines are shown in dresses and wraps for young women of from 12 to 16.

Cape dresses, like that in the sketch, are of wool plaid or of wool jersey bound with silk braid. The capes are detachable, the dresses are simple slipover affairs.

Just the properly low waistline is featured on the center frock with its little pointed collar which reaches only to the shoulders and does not appear at all in back.

The third frock simulates a smart overblouse and pleated skirt and is shown both with detachable collars and cuffs of wash material with those of the dres fabric.

Kerchief Scarfs.

Bright handkerchiefs are still being worn as scarfs, especially in connection with sports costumes. They either lie loosely from the neck or are drawn tightly and thrown to one side.

Contrast Trimming.

Some of the new black suede hats have white kid trimmings, or gold or silver nail heads studding the crown.

Sister Mary's Kitchen

(Unless otherwise specified, these recipes are planned for four persons.)

CAKE BAKERY.

These suggestions are in reply to a letter asking for help in cake making.

First use the very best materials.

Pastry flour is preferable to bread flour. Bread flour contains more gluten than pastry flour and less is needed to thicken the cake. Use two tablespoons less per cup of bread flour than the rule calls for.

Fine granulated sugar is more desirable than a coarse-grained granulated sugar. The coarse sugar makes a cake of coarse texture with a hard crust.

Combine carefully. There are several methods of combining ingredients. The whites and yolks are sometimes beaten separately and then mixed, the sugar added with the shortening softened, but not hot and oily. The flour and baking powder are sifted together and added alternately with the liquid.

SHORTENING.

Or the shortening and sugar are beaten to a cream. To do this, work the shortening until creamy and soft with a wooden spoon against the side of the mixing bowl. Slowly beat in sugar. Before adding the yolks of the eggs beaten until thick and lemon colored I like to add about two tablespoons of sifted flour to the butter and sugar. Take this flour out after the measuring, before sifting the second time with baking powder.

Beat in yolks of eggs well beaten. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and a little salt. Add alternately with milk. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry and fold into mixture. Turn into an oiled and floured cake pan and bake 20 to 30 minutes if a layer cake and 40 to 60 minutes if a loaf. The oven should be moderately hot.

STANDARD RULE.

The standard rule that is most practical for every day use is this:

One-quarter to ½ cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, ½ cup liquid, 1½ to 1¾ cups flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon salt.

The liquid can be sweet milk, cream, water, sour milk or sour cream. When sweet or sour cream is used the amount of shortening should be reduced to three tablespoons. Add one-quarter teaspoon soda to sour milk or cream and use but one teaspoon baking powder.

Push mixture well up on the sides of the pan, leaving less batter in the center. This insures an even top when baked.

Put the cake in the center of the oven, providing an even temperature on all sides. Let rise to full height before moving. Do not let a draft of cold air strike the cake while baking, so open the oven door with care. (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

SOULIE CREATES SPRING FASHION

Paris, Feb. 4—Soulie has created a sensational spring fashion by a combination of straw and fur. One hat by this designer with a crown and brim of soft, light straw and a straw bow, standing up behind, has the wide brim bordered with a thick band of black fox.

London, Feb. 4—Included in the list of new laces is a lovely one in blue and cream, the foundation being cream and the pattern black. Lace overdresses made of this material are worn over slips of peach or cornflower satin.

New York, Feb. 4—The skirt with a bodice top has returned to style today. It is being purchased for wear with the short jacquette by women preparing for the Florida and California resorts.

New York, Feb. 4—Flesh satin makes up an attractive pair of the newest evening slippers, to be worn with nude hose.

Household Suggestions

Nails Kept Clean.

Before doing dirty work around the house, such as oiling floors or cleaning the stove, rub the fingernails over a cake of wet soap and force the soap under the nails. It can be easily removed and will save the appearance of your nails immeasurably.

Onion Juice.

A simple way to extract onion juice is to cut the onion in half and press it over an ordinary lemon squeezer.

Soiled Photos.

Photographs that have become soiled may be cleaned by sponging lightly with alcohol on absorbent cotton.

Piano Keys.

Piano keys are best cleaned with a soft cloth. Carved ivory ornaments are satisfactorily cleaned with a brush dipped in grain or denatured alcohol.

J. M. U. GLEE CLUB BEFORE PUBLIC

To Appear Four Times This Week.

Millikin University Glee Club will sing before Decatur audiences four times this week, on Wednesday at the Decatur High school and at the Lincoln Square theater Friday night, Saturday afternoon and Saturday night. The club, consisting of twenty-four students of the university, under the direction of Director Provenson of the Conservatory, will be made up of the same members who will make the trip to Chicago Feb. 18 and represent the local college in the contest at Orchestra Hall.

Decatur people will thus be given the opportunity to hear the Millikin club in its concert before they go to the contest. The three songs which are to be sung at the collegiate contest will be included in the numbers the Millikin men will sing at the High school and at the Lincoln Square. "Morning Hymn" is the prize song, and the other songs will be "Proudly as the Eagle" and the "Millikin Loyalty."

WILSON SERVICE.

Services appropriate for the observance of ceremonies in respect to the late ex-president Woodrow Wilson will be held in the Millikin University chapel Tuesday morning. Chapel is not held on Mondays at the university, so Tuesday will be given over to these services.

OPEN SERVICES AT RIVERSIDE

Capacity Crowd at Baptist Church Revival

Revival services opened at the Riverside Baptist church Sunday night with a capacity crowd. The audience was enthusiastic and appreciative. Both the orchestra and the choir of the church appeared in an excellent program. The services will be continued each night during the week, at 7:30, the subjects for the services to be as follows:

Monday—"The Dyadmic"
Tuesday—"Ready-Made Clothes"
Wednesday—"The Lost Romance"
Thursday—"The Road to Understanding."
Friday—"Second-Hand Clothes."
Saturday—"The Call of the Wild."

The orchestra and choir of the church will give numbers each night.

NAZARENE REVIVAL.

The revival services which began in the First Church of the Nazarene Sunday evening started off with a crowded house. Evangelist Ed. Gallop is preaching each evening at 7:30 and as a result of his sermon Sunday evening there were nine conversions. The meetings will continue each evening this week and there will be special musical numbers by the chorus choir and solos by Mr. Gallop and Miss Freda Mauritz.

MRS. DEWEY NEWMAN IN STATE OFFICE

Elected Secretary-Treasurer of Republican League of Kansas.

Mrs. Dewey Newman of Wichita, Kan., formerly of Decatur, was elected secretary-treasurer of the National Republican League of Kansas at the first annual state convention of the organization held in Memorial hall, Topeka.

Mrs. Newman, who also is secretary of the Sedgwick county organization, also had the honor of receiving, in behalf of the county organization, the bronze medal which was awarded for the largest proportionate attendance. The medal has a bust of Warren G. Harding in relief on one side and a memorial figure on the other. The presentation was made by Ex-Governor W. L. Harding of Iowa.

Besides Ex-Governor W. L. Harding another speaker at the meeting was Dr. Horace G. Ellis of Chicago, Republican national committeeman-at-large. That fact also is of interest in this section, as Dr. Ellis is a Macon county man. He was born and reared near Blue Mound, leaving there in the early eighties.

Mrs. Newman was active among the Macon county Republican women when she lived in Decatur.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET FEB. 5

Monticello, Feb. 4—The Father and Son banquet will be held Tuesday evening, Feb. 5 in the Methodist church parlors. An out-of-town speaker has been engaged to give the address of the evening. The Methodist Episcopal Guild will serve the banquet.

Miss Dorothy Merritt of Decatur was the week-end guest of Miss Bernice Griffith.

Miss Kathryn Kastel spent Sunday in Bloomington with her sister, Miss Gussie, who is a patient in the St. Joseph hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kress, Jr., and the latter's mother, Mrs. E. A. Thorpe, motored to West Lebanon, Ind., Friday and visited Mrs. Boyd Yelton.

Miss Mildred Ashton has resigned her position at the Fidelity store and has accepted a position as book keeper at the Ford Service station here.

Miss Marguerite Kellar has accepted a stenographic position in the Burgess and Cline office.

Miss Guyneth Eaton of Decatur spent Sunday here with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. William Shaffer and family, who have been living on one of the Allerton farms have moved to Decatur.

Carroll Dodd, who is a student at the U. of I. spent Saturday with friends in Monticello.

Miss Bonnie Bruce of Dement is working at the Fidelity store.

Mrs. Ross Cool returned Monday to her home in Mansfield after a week's visit with her mother, Mrs. Mart McIntosh and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson motored to Decatur Sunday afternoon and visited D. W. Culp who is a patient in the St. Mary's hospital.

HER COUGH KEPT GETTING WORSE

So thin and weak she couldn't walk. Was well in 3 months.

"Something over a year ago I had the flu, which left me with a very bad cough, which kept getting worse all the time. If I attempted to lie down at night, I would cough all night and choke up so I would have to sit up in bed. This continued until I got so weak I could not walk across the floor and every night I thought would be my last. I became so thin that my hands would meet around my legs. My doctor said that my lungs were affected, and I was in a desperate condition.

"Finally I read about Milks Emulsion and started to use it. I have now taken it about three months and I am entirely recovered. My cough is gone and I have taken on flesh and strength and I thank God that I found Milks Emulsion."—Mrs. K. Bell 1649 Bergen St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

If you are weak, run-down and coughing, your system is wide open to the most serious ailments. Milks Emulsion has helped thousands to regain the flesh and strength which assists nature in fighting disease.

Milks Emulsion restores healthy, natural bowel action; it is a truly corrective medicine, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food, and thus build flesh and strength. Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whom sickness has weakened; it is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 50c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by the Decatur Drug Co., and by druggists everywhere.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

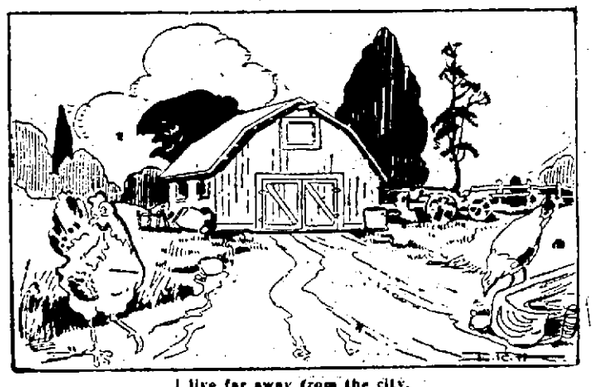

by Olive Roberts Barton

"Nick, get him his prize. It's a horn."

A Barnyard Riddle.

I live far away from the city.

"Here comes the Riddle Lady," cried Humpty Dumpty. "Make way everybody!"

Nancy and Nick waved their handkerchiefs and Little Boy Blue blew his horn in greeting.

"How do you do, everybody," called the Riddle Lady cheerily as she stepped out of her coach. "As the riddle today is long, I'll begin at once so you will have more time to guess. Boy Blue, I have an idea that you may get the prize. Now think hard!" And she began:

"I live far away from the city,
The country's the place for me.
So please do not think it's a pity,
For I'm happy as happy can be.
(I laugh and I laugh at the cute little pigs,
And their wee funny tails like whirligigs).

"I'm really a very hard worker,
Though I may seem lazy to you.
But I'm not a bit of a shirker,
There's so very much work to do.
(I chuckle and laugh when the ducks go quack,
And wiggle their tails so funny in back).

"My shoulders are broad and lusty,
I carry just tons of hay,
And to show you that I am trusty,
I have bushels of oats stored away.
(Did you ever see a brand-new little They're the funniest things, they would make you laugh!)

"My hay-mows are roomy and quiet,
So the hens come to me to lay eggs.
But the sillies do make such a riot
The minute they get on their legs!
(But the chicks! Oh, la, they're like powder puffs!
They would simply be perfect for fairy muffs!)

"In the winter the horses and cattle
Stand patiently still in my stalls,
While outside the winds roar and rattle,
And the stinging snow drifts as it falls.
(And I feel like patting the huddling sheep,
Dear things, they are dreaming of spring in their sleep!)

"Why, I wouldn't live in the city,
With its hubbub and houses and cars,
For the country is ten times as pretty,
And you've room to look up at the stars.
(Oh, Mrs. Sheep's funny, so is cross Mr. Ram,
But the cutest of all is a new little lamb.)"

"It's a barn!" cried Little Boy Blue. "I know for my haystack is right beside one."

"Right!" declared the Riddle Lady.

Each 15-cent package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint any old, worn, faded things new, even if she has never dyed before. Drug stores sell all colors.

A PUZZLE A DAY

The drawing shows four circles, one within the other. The circles represent the four silver U. S. coins—dollar, half dollar, quarter and dime. Around them are thirteen stars which appear on many coins. Distribute the thirteen stars among the circles so that each circle contains an odd number of stars.

Yesterday's Answer.

THOTH
OSIRIS

Take the first "H" from Thoth and insert it in Osiris, thus: T OTH—OSIRHIS.

Put the O from Osiris into the blank space of T OTH, and your answer is: TOOTH, SIR, HIS—three words of the English language.

HE HAD NO SUCCESSOR

Woodrow Wilson, having done enough work to kill him before this time, is dead at the age of 67 years. But the story of his passing is carried to the ends of the earth.

The great esteem in which he was held by many people is indicated in the influence he has had in affairs since he was made unable to take an active part. No Democratic candidate for the presidency has felt he could make any headway unless he possessed the good wishes of Mr Wilson.

And it was more than four years ago that he was so sorely stricken. Since then he was able to give but little to discussion of the affairs of the day, and during a big part of the time not a word could come from him. It a way it might be said he was almost completely withdrawn from activities of the times when stricken at Wichita in September 1919.

That was more than four years ago and yet in the meantime there was no other one man in the country whose influence was as far reaching and searching.

A further mark of the esteem in which he was held was shown at the time they buried the 'Unknown Soldier' in Washington. Mr Wilson appeared on that occasion, got a place in the line of march, and then thousands on thousands of the mourners managed to speak in an unmistakable way the great regard and reverence they had for the broken man.

Friday last he said 'I'm a broken machine!' Again with a great effort of great will, he pulled himself together to say 'But I'm ready.'

Yes he must have been ready. It is impossible to think anything else of a man who worked as he did. He did his very best, which was a great deal, surely he was ready to give account for all the extraordinary talents that had been given him.

Many of us will always have some feeling of disappointment and dismay that he was not permitted to finish his work under another setting. He was not allowed to take an active part in defending the big work of his life, he was cut down just at the moment that work was before the nation for indorsement or rejection. In the last act—at least the last we have had up to date—he could not take a part. And surely never was a man more needed in any big work than was Woodrow Wilson in 1920.

He had the mental capacity and gifts to conduct this undertaking as it should have been done. And there did not seem to be another to take his place and carry on in his stead.

It is often told there always is some one to fall in and fill the gap left by any departing man. While this is true in nearly all cases, it isn't at all likely to be so in the case of the exceptional man, the one who comes once in a generation. Could there have been one to take Lincoln's place and finish the job he had been called toward the close of 1863?

In saying this there is no intention to make a talk for the League of Nations. Woodrow Wilson was the man to have done that and there was no one to take it up for him. When he was stricken in Wichita the great prop under the world's biggest undertaking was torn away and we know what followed.

One might not care to assert the consequences would have been averted if Wilson had been spared for the rest of the fight; but at least it would then have been the kind of fight to stir men's hearts and to make them dare. This stirring and daring were sadly needed at the time. With Woodrow Wilson out of the lists, it could no longer be the class and kind of fighting the cause demanded.

When he was taken from the arena smaller men were permitted to have their way. These may claim they have done better than was proposed, but we should have more confidence in this claim had Woodrow Wilson been spared to carry the other side of the fight.

Also we might have more regard for the claim if the world had only done better since the eclipse of Woodrow Wilson. There are too many signs that we have not done as well as might be, had he been spared to do his big part, one for which an understudy was not prepared—in fact could not have been.

The triumph of the smaller men hasn't been much to brag about. Today we find them unable to keep reasonable order even in their own camp. Big things were stirring when Woodrow Wilson was called from the contest, and it isn't plain that he have made much of them, considering the opportunity that was inviting, we may doubt that we have gone far.

There must have been something of this kind in the minds of the thousands on thousands who at different times in the past four years broke into a state of exaltation when Woodrow Wilson even with crutch and cane and other needed support, flashed on the scene for only a few minutes.

And it is wondered how long the world will have to wait for the coming of another who can and will take up the work where he had to lay off.

He had no successor. We have to bear up as best we can with an intermission.

MUCH LIKE OTHER DOPE

For days at a stretch we read items and remarks to indicate that the paramount question before the house is reduction of taxes. This motion appears to get the approval of everybody, and the chair is almost ready to declare the motion unanimously carried.

Then we hear from another corner of the bailiwick. Some one gets inside and claims attention for a little while just a few moments not long. He secures recognition and at once proceeds to move that something else be taken on of course a something that increases the sum of money to be raised through taxation.

It may be that he is given his way, he being a sweet talker it is hard to deny. Then there are a few more thousands to be raised the following year. And too often this is the outcome of the protracted session that was called to secure reduction in taxes.

The fact probably is that eating taxes is like eating other dope, a bad habit hard to abandon. The way to reduce taxes is to cut out some of the undertakings that call for taxes to pay their way. The way an individual reduces his outlay is to get along without some of the things he has had—and as yet no other way has been devised.

In fact it is agreed that this applies when we come to tax reduction, and yet we have with us hundreds who are pressing schemes that must call for more public expenditures. They favor tax reduction but never practically. There is something in them that tells them the way to save the country is to tax it to death. They don't admit this in words, but they do in acts.

The 'dope' has a bad hold on these fellows.

THE UNWRITTEN WORK

Attorney General Daugherty telegraphs from Florida that he had nothing to do with oil leases and for the good reason his opinion was never asked. Doubtless he is puzzled to understand why his resignation should be urged at this time.

He will have to get over this feeling of surprise if he is to be reasonably happy while sojourning with us. By now he should begin to appreciate the fact that his resignation is always next in the order of unfinished business.

People do not have to wait until they have something against him, a thing tied to him before asking his resignation. They have contracted the habit of asking for it, they can't be happy and can't feel they are doing their duty to themselves and their country unless they do ask.

It doesn't make any difference that Mr Daugherty's opinion was not sought in these oil cases. We assume that it might have been sought and that if it were he would rule in a way to offend our sensibilities. A good many of us seem to have it in for him for the sins he might have committed—all of them the unpardonable variety.

TIME OF HIS LIFE

We are not sure we are ready to gush a lot of sympathy for Alexander Howatt the disturbance from Kansas who was thrown out of the miners' convention at Indianapolis. It may be he has grown to enjoy this style of experience.

It is noted that before they threw him out he managed to put on a demonstration that reporters called a 'riot.' There was a great lot of howling and members were telling each other to go hang themselves, though not in terms so diplomatic. There was a great fuss and general disturbance, and Howatt was the center figure in all of it.

This sort of thing must be much to his liking. It may be he had more enjoyment and comfort out of the convention that fired him than he could get in a half dozen that would treat him seriously while insisting he must behave.

He might prefer a convention in which allowed to tear up things generally and specifically and yet everybody in the humor to call him brother. But it isn't often that a fellow can help himself to everything on the platter.

It may be that some have not been sufficiently cautious in burning midnight oil. For a while better not have anything to do with oil.

But you can put it down the miners will quit their rowing by the time they gather in Florida to meet the operators.

It occurs to some that if Decatur High is to keep on winning it should have a steam whistle to blow the news to the town.

Also we rise to mention that Hiram Johnson comes from California, a state that has a lot of oil in its innards.

They like Mr Coffman's tax letters, and after he receipts them they will be put away in the keepsake box.

Eggs are 45 cents and coming down, and we are thinking some of bringing that appetite out of storage.

When they get automatic train stops on the Wabash we trust they will not apply to our old friend No 9.

Democrats will offer prizes of $10 for campaign stories, but understand this doesn't mean campaign lies.

T C Buxton has gone into the hotel line, and the umpire says the next is Jesse Deck's move.

It is plain by now that the thing we need is a species of groundhog that comes blind.

INTO HISTORY

Little Benny's Notebook

Mas canary berd, Melba hasent sang yet and today after suppir I went up in the setting room and started to play tunes on my mouth organ to incourage it. Melba jest setting there looking discouraged insted of incouraged and ma came in saying Chickie chickie chickie sing chickie.

Wich Melba dident and I kepp on playing the mouth organ in frunt of the cage and ma kepp on calling it chickie and inviting it to sing and pop came in with the paper to reed saying, All rite Benny sippose you tuck that mouth organ up in its little bed now.

Meening to stop playing it and ma sed Let him play, Willyum, he's trying to see if he could make Melba sing chickie chickie chickie, sing chickie.

Yee gods pop sed.

She allmos sing today chickie chickie, ma sed.

Well in the name of harmony how can a berd allmost sing? pop sed. Wat did she do, struggle or some thing? he sed.

No she opened her little font and held it open quite a wile ma sed.

The berd was bored she was meerly yawning pop sed.

Canaries dont yawn because in the fest place theyre too pritty to do enny thing so vulgar in the ferst place, ma sed. Melba it opened her mouth to see if eny sounds were inside to come out. I could tell by her expression, chickie chickie sing, chickie she sed.

And she kepp on coaxing Melba to sing and I kepp on playing my mouth organ for encouragement and pop sed Enuff is as good as a fest and this is too mutch. Im going to take myself to a movie.

Wich he did.

Ten Years Ago Today in Decatur

FEBRUARY 4 1914

John Graham Hope de la Poer Beresford which translated into more common terms meant Baron Decies of County Westerford, Ire. land accompanied by his American wife Vivien Gould were in Decatur for a short time coming in a private car on the Wabash. They were on their way to tour the Missouri Pacific lines.

Decatur schools were so crowded for the opening of the second semester that forty three children reporting to the departmental school could not be accommodated and had to be sent home.

Drs B L Maienthal N D Myers and F M Anderson were named as the new pension examining board by Congressman Borchers.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

The promoters of the proposed Black Diamond railroad decided to abandon its promotion.

The Grace Methodist church was holding a month's revival.

The Iroquois club was getting ready for its annual minstrel show.

The jail which was being remodeled was almost finished and the prisoners were moved from their temporary quarters back to the new part.

ARROGANCE

Deny it scoffer though you will
There's more to life than cleverness.
White hands and fashion's newest dress
One may be worth lacking skill.

Think not the smart and clever word
Is all that God would have us say.
Hurl not on grammar's polished way
Goes every prayer that shall be heard.

The man who's not worldly wise
Who does not know the things you know
Who bears the sneers which you bestow
May be an angel in disguise.

Tis but the gift of circumstance
It had been yours were fate unkind,
That brilliant and boastful mind
You own by such a narrow chance!

That one with hammer, one with pen
Work for life's pittance year by year
Is not a cause to boast or sneer.
This matters not if both are men.

Respect him though his speech be plain
Befriend him whensoever you can
Do not despise your fellow man
Search out the heart and not the brain.

All would be clever if we could
And would the roses of glory wear
But this great privilege we share
Honor in any garb is good.

wasting your strength so that in the morning you feel more tired than when you went to bed—get rid of it before it causes you more serious trouble.

For more than fifty-years, thousands of families have kept Dr King's New Discovery in the medicine closet to break up coughs. It does this naturally, quickly, by stimulating the mucous membranes to throw off the secretions that are clogging them. Harmlessly, and without any bad after effects, it stops the violent throat and lung spasms and gives the irritation a chance to heal. It has an agreeable taste. All druggists.

Coughs that keep you awake at night can be stopped quickly with this simple household remedy

DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY

The Story Of Decatur

By E. B. Hitchcock

CHAPTER 64.

WILLIAM H. ENNIS A RAILROADER.

He Came to Decatur in 1852, Married Miss Louie Harrison and Left 5,500 Acres of Land to Heirs.

Many people afterward prominent in Decatur business and social life came to Decatur with the railroads. One of these was William H. Ennis, who was a construction agent for the Illinois Central Railroad from Clinton to Vandalia. He had been living at Vandalia, having come to Illinois from New York. He paid his first visit to Decatur in 1852.

Before his coming, the Berrys had arrived in Decatur. That is, Mrs. Ann Harrison had come here, accompanied by her daughter, Louie Harrison, and Mrs. Harrison was a daughter of Elijah C. Berry. Mrs. Harrison built the house on East Eldorado street long known as 'The Old Tuttle House,' where many other since prominent citizens first resided on coming here.

ASKED HER TO SING

William H Ennis and Miss Louie Harrison met at the home of the Masons in the 400 block on North Morgan street, about where the Purity bakery now stands. He was much taken with her, immediately, and during the call he asked her to sing for him.

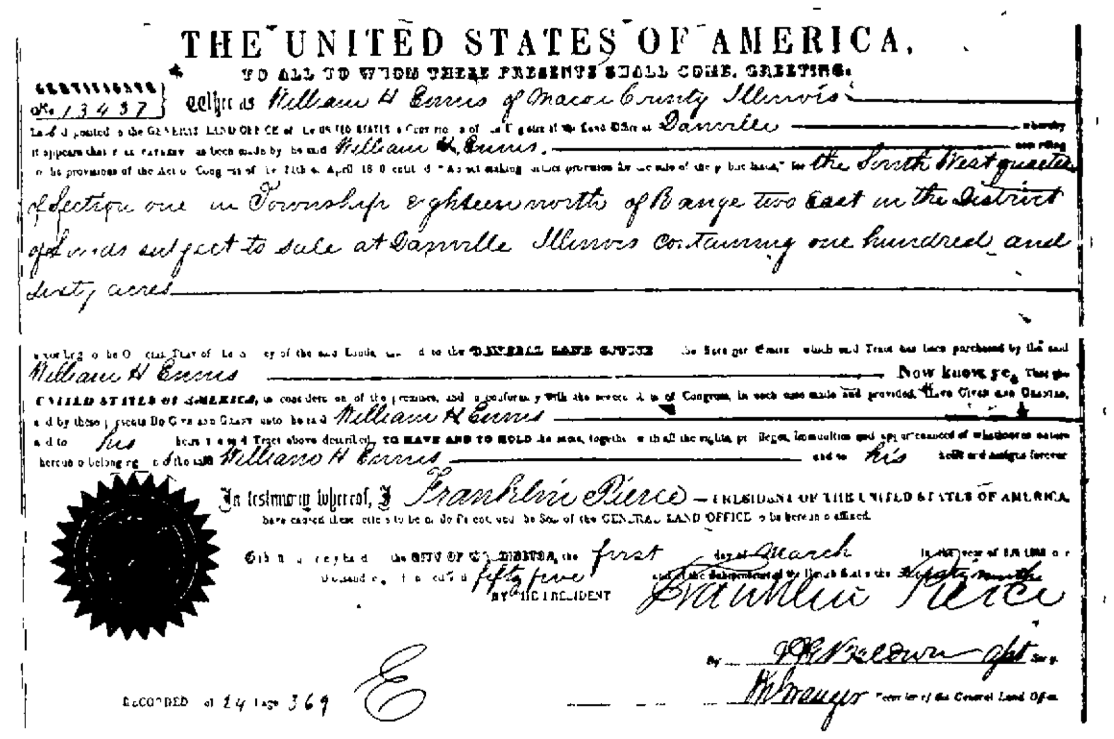

"If you will come over to my own home I shall be only too happy to do so," said the young lady. Mr. Ennis went. And several years later, in 1859, after he had returned to Decatur from St Paul, where he had been following his profession, the couple were married in the Harrison home on East Eldorado street.

BERRY A PUBLISHER

Among the treasured possessions of William S Ennis, formerly of Decatur, now living in Chicago, is a bound volume of old issues of the Argus of Western America, printed weekly at Frankfort, Kentucky, by Gerard and Berry, "Printers to the Commonwealth," in 1813. The Berry of this publishing firm was Mr Ennis' great grandfather, E C Berry.

In the copies of the Argus preserved by Mr. Ennis are many items of interest to us of today. There were many advertisements of strayed horses picked up in that region, owing to the fact that but little of the land was fenced, and there were numerous notices of negro slaves who had been jailed by the authorities until their owners could be reached. One notice of a school of languages and sciences in Frankfort

This Store Stands Back of Everything It Sells

¶Last month we advertised Worumbo overcoats at $50. Worumbo is the name of a mill manufacturing fabrics from which overcoats are made.

¶Of course we were selling other overcoats at the same time.

¶It has been brought to our attention that at least one customer purchased an overcoat here under the impression that it was a Worumbo when it was not; he feels that the material was misrepresented to him. It is possible there are others.

¶This store never considers a transaction complete until the customer is satisfied. We want to say here and now that we'll gladly refund the money of any or all customers who have purchased overcoats or any articles in this store with which they are not perfectly satisfied.

LETTER OF 1817.

This E. C. Berry was first at Kaskaskia on the Mississippi and later at Vandalia in the capacity of state auditor, about 1822. He had been in Kaskaskia, Illinois Territory," in 1817, when the state capitol was located there, and had written this interesting letter back to his wife in Kentucky, which is printed to show how the early settlers felt about this part of the country, and because it mentions J. T. B. Stapp, who came to Decatur some years after, but also because of the grace of expression shown by the writer:

"Kaskaskia, Ill. Territory.
Aug. 13, 1817.

"My Dear—

"My great anxiety to see you all can only be appreciated by my own feelings; however, I hope it will be in my power to return in the course of three or four weeks and perhaps sooner. This however will depend on my arrangements at this place, as I have determined to commence business here.

"I am very much pleased with the country, and the prospects, which are yet, in some degree distant, tho' I think not far.

"I have not yet met the appointment of Auditor, tho' I think the prospect of procuring that appointment favorable. I shall procure a house before I leave this place, and shall move as soon as I can arrange my business in Kentucky, the ensuing fall. And perhaps purchase a farm. So that, if Mr. Stapp is disposed to move with us he may have a place on which he may settle; and if not I will lease it out to some person to improve it, and when improved, we will, as soon as we can with propriety, go on it ourselves.

"It is certainly one of the most delightful countries in the west, and one, too, which inevitably must surpass in point of production any other state or territory.

"I can give you a more particular account of it when I shall have the pleasure to see you again.

"Tell James I have gotten him a very pretty Spanish horse for him and Franklin to ride to the Illinois Territory this fall, and they and Eliza must learn as fast as possible, before they start to the new country.

"I hope this may find you and Nancy well, and the children.

"I remain your devoted husband,
(Signed) E. C. BERRY."

WATER TRIP.

The Berry family finally came out of Kentucky, making as much of the journey as possible by water. They came down the Ohio on a flat boat, which was poled up to Kaskaskia. They brought their slaves with them and much furniture and household goods of all kinds.

Mrs. Louie Harrison Ennis, who died in California in 1917, was the daughter of Ann Berry, whose father was Elijah C. Berry. Ann Berry was first married to William L. E. Morrison, who was one of the engineers of the Cumberland road in Illinois. After Mr. Morrison's death, the widow married George Harrison. The late Mrs. Ennis of Decatur was a daughter of this couple. After her second husband's death Mrs. Harrison came to Decatur.

Mrs. Ennis recalled quite vividly the long trips by stage which she took with her mother in the early days. The coaches often turned over in the muddy roads, and on one such trip a baby sister suffered from the exposure of the trip by stage and died.

CHICAGO SOCIETY.

In the early days in Chicago the streets were much lower than at present and they were always in bad condition. Mrs. Ennis' grandmother, Mrs. Berry, used to tell what trouble the young Chicago society belles used to have getting to parties, especially in winter. They drove in big drays which sometimes turned over, ruining their pretty clothes.

Mrs. Ennis used to tell how she went to Chicago to buy an outfit for her son, Robert Berry Ennis, before he was born, and how she bought the baby clothes from Potter Palmer, clerking in his own store.

One of the great treats of the young people in Decatur were the parties at the John Crocker home in Maroa. There was only one house there at first, and that was the house adjoining the station, built by the railroad for the station master, John Crocker, father of the present Maroa banker.

LEFT BIG ESTATE.

Money was not so plentiful as land at the beginning of the railroad era in this part of the state. At times, the railroad employes were offered tracts of land in lieu of cash payments. Mr. Ennis profited by this opportunity and invested all the money he could get hold of in the cheap lands in this section. When he died in 1901 his estate comprised 5,500 acres of farm land in central Illinois, as well as several important business buildings in Decatur.

The Ennis lands will remain intact for another generation at least, because of the arrangement made by William H. Ennis that his children should inherit life interests only, and should any of them die without issue it reverts to any children of his children remaining alive. The children of William S. Ennis of Chicago are the only living heirs in their generation, and they will some day have the custody of this vast estate, which has greatly increased in value since it was acquired by their far-seeing grandfather.

For Swollen Joints

FORTUNE'S FOOL

BY RAFAEL SABATINI

ILLUSTRATED BY R.W. SAYERFIELD

©RAFAEL SABATINI 1923. RELEASED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Colonel Holles, soldier and adventurer, comes to lodge with Martha Quinn, hostess of the Paul's Head in Paul's Yard, London. Mrs. Quinn, possessed of a discerning eye for a fine figure of a man, assigns to the colonel's exclusive use a cosy parlor.

The colonel informs Martha that he has business in town at Court. With an eye to the future, Mrs. Quinn lavishly entertains Holles and sees in him an ideal husband. Of humble birth, Martha longs to marry a gentleman born.

The colonel is in reduced circumstances and Martha, seeing this, receives to impress upon his mind that she is a wealthy woman willing to fall victim to his charms. The colonel is mildly puzzled when Mrs. Quinn suggests to him that he take unto himself a wife.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Now there I vow you do yourself injustice."

"Faith, it's a trick I've learnt from others."

"You are, when all is said, a very proper man."

"Aye! But proper for what?"

Who pursued her theme without pausing to answer his frivolous question. "And there's many a woman of substance who needs a man to care for her and guard her—such a man as yourself, Colonel; one who knows his world and commands a worthy place in it."

"I command that, do I? On my soul you give me news of myself."

"If ye don't command it, it is that ye lack the means, perhaps. But the place is yours by right."

"By what right, good hostess?"

"By the right of your birth and breeding and military rank, which is plain upon you. Sir, why will you be undervaluing yourself? The means that would enable you to take your proper place would be provided by the wife who would be glad to share it with you."

He shook his head, and laughed again.

"Do you know of such a lady?"

Because her courage failed her at this moment, Destiny pursued the forging of that curious chain of circumstance which it is my task to reveal to you link by link.

"I think," she said slowly at last, "that I should not be sorely put to it to find her. I..... I should not have far to seek."

"It is a flattering conviction. Alas, ma'am, I do not share it." He was sardonic. He made it clear that he refused to take the matter seriously, that with him it never could be more than a peg for jests. He rose, smiling a little crookedly. "Therefore I'll still pin my hopes to his grace of Albemarle. They may be desperate; but, faith, they're none so desperate as hopes of wedlock." He took up his sword as he spoke, passing the baldric over his head and settling it on his shoulder. Then he reached for his hat. Mrs. Quinn regarding him the while in mingling wistfulness and hesitation.

At last she roused herself and sighed.

"We shall see; we shall see. Maybe we'll talk of it again."

"Not if you love me," delectable matchmaker," he protested, turning to depart.

Solicitude for his immediate comfort conquered all other considerations in her.

"You'll not go forth without another draught to....to fortify you."

She possessed herself again of the empty tankard. He paused and smiled. "I may need fortifying," he confessed, thinking of all the disappointment that had waited upon his every previous attempt to see the duke. "You think of everything," he praised her. "You are not Mrs. Quinn of the Paul's Head, you are benign Fortune pouring gifts from an inexhaustible cornucopia."

"La, sir!" she laughed, as she bustled out. It would be wrong to say that she did not understand him; for she perfectly understood that he paid her some high and flowery compliment, which was what she most desired of him as an earnest of better things to follow.

CHAPTER II.

Albemarle's Antechamber.

THROUGH the noisy bustle of Paul's Yard the Colonel took his way. He moved with a certain arrogant, swaggering assurance, despite his shabby finery.

Below Ludgate, in that evil valley watered by the Fleet Ditch, there were hackney-coaches in plenty, and, considering the distance which he must go and the desirability of coming to his destination cleanly shod, Colonel Holles was momentarily tempted. He bethought him—and sighed wearily over the reflection—of the alarming lightness of his purse and alarming heaviness of his score at the Paul's Head, where he had so culpably lacked the strength of mind to deny himself any of those luxuries with which in the past month he had been lavished, and for which, should Albemarle fail him in the end, he knew not how to pay. There was that ruby in his ear, a jewel that being converted into gold should keep a man in ease for the best part of a twelvemonth. For fifteen years and through many a stress of fortune it had hung and glowed there amid his clustering gold-brown hair. He attached to that bright gem a sentimental value that had become a superstition. There had grown up in his mind the absolute conviction that this jewel, the gift of an unknown whose life he had arrested on the black threshold of eternity, was a talisman and something more—that, as it had played a part in the fortunes of another, so should it yet play a part in the fortunes of himself and of that other lately. There abode with him the unconquerable feeling that this ruby was a bond between himself and that unknown, a lodestone that should draw each to the other ultimately across a whole world of obstacles rest by the bustle in which he found himself. But there remained another doubt; which was whether his grace, being now returned, would condescend to receive him. Six times in the course of the past four weeks had he vainly sought admission. On three of those occasions he had been shortly answered that his grace was out of Town; on one of them—the last—more circumstantially that his grace was at Portsmouth about the business of the fleet. Twice it was admitted—and he had abundant evidences, as now—that the Duke was at home and receiving; but the Colonel's shabbiness had aroused the mistrust of the ushers, and they had barred his way to ask him superciliously was he commanded by the Duke. Upon his confession that he was not, they informed him that the Duke was over-busy to receive any but those whom he had commanded, and they bade him come again some other day. He had not imagined that George Monk would be so difficult of access, remembering his homely republican disregard of forms in other days. But being twice repulsed from his threshold in this fashion, he had taken the precaution of writing before presenting himself now, begging his grace to give orders that he should be admitted, unless he no longer held a place in his grace's memory.

A DOORKEEPER BARRED HIS PROGRESS.

The present visit, therefore, was fateful. A refusal now he must regard as final, in which case he would be left to curse the impulse that had brought him back to England, where it was very likely he would starve.

A doorkeeper with a halbert barred his progress on the threshold. "Your business, sir?"

"Is with His Grace of Albemarle." The Colonel's tone was sharp and confident. Thanks to this the next question was less challengingly delivered.

"You are commanded, sir?"

"I have reason to believe I am awaited. His grace is apprised of my coming."

The doorkeeper looked him over again, and then made way.

He was past the outer guard, and his hopes rose. But at the end of a long gallery a wooden-faced usher confronted him, and the questions recommenced. When Holles announced that he had written to beg an audience—

DREDGE 3 MILES OF THE SANGAMON

Lumber for Bridge Over New Channel.

Mt. Auburn, Feb. 4—Lumber has been hauled to be used in the erection of the new bridge which will be built over the new chanel of the Sangamon river which is being dredged from the Niantic bridge to a point near Roby, a distance of about sixteen miles.

The big dredge boat which commenced last August has covered a distance of about three miles, but has been shut down for a week owing to the severe winter weather and to repair the boat. This new bridge will be about two miles south of the old river bridge, and will be about three and one-half miles north of Mt. Auburn, on the Illiopolis road.

A large crowd was in attendance at the social and reception held at the Christian church Thursday evening in honor of the new members recently taken into the church. Refreshments were served.

SERIOUSLY ILL.

Word has been received here of the serious illness of Robert H. Stanberry of Springfield, a former resident, who is confined to a hospital at that place suffering with obstruction of the bowels. Little hope is entertained for his recovery. Mr. Stanberry is well known in this community, having resided on a farm west of town until he moved to Springfield a few years ago to reside.

Miss Agnes Fanson of Assumption arrived Wednesday to visit a few days with her sister, Miss Carrie Fanson, who fell on the ice covered walk recently and severely injured her back and received a bad scalp wound. Miss Fanson, who is teacher in the primary room of the grade school here, has been unable to teach the last week, but expects to be sufficiently recovered to resume her duties as teacher this week.

A license to wed was issued at Springfield Thursday to William Saulsbury of Illiopolis, formerly of this community, aged thirty-one, and Belle Jordan, of Mt. Auburn, aged thirty.

Mrs. David J. Milligan, an aged woman, living in the west part of town, is quite ill suffering with acute stomach trouble.

Mrs. Charles F. Milligan has received word that her sister-in-law, Mrs. Clara Gideon of near Mechanicsburg, formerly of this place, is confined to St. John's Hospital at Springfield.

W. O. Bromel has returned from a few days' visit with his daughter, Mrs. Clark Stanberry and family at Springfield.

James D. Hendson and daughter, Mrs. Lena Hardbarger of Decatur visited here Thursday with Mrs. D. J. Milligan.

Mrs. Edmund Bliler visited in Decatur Thursday with Miss Lottie Marshall, who is confined to the home of her sister, Mrs. William Scott at that place, recovering from a long illness. Miss Marshall is slowly recovering.

LAKE CITY.

Miss Sylvia Dickson will leave Sunday for Pekin, Ill., where she will enter the nurse's training school at the Pekin Public hospital.

Mrs. Sarah Scott spent last week in Decatur with relatives.

J. H. Brohard, who has been ill for some time, is not much improved.

A number of persons from here attended the play at Mt. Zion Wednesday night, given by home talent.

Several surveyors were working here last week surveying for route thirty-two. It is not known yet where the road will be.

Fred Scott visited relatives in Decatur Wednesday night and Thursday.

Thomas Hickey and Milo Dearman were in Decatur Thursday.

O. L. Snow and family have moved to the O. B. Kearney farm northeast of town.

Miss Sylvia Dickson entertained the Sew-a-Bit club at her home Tuesday afternoon.

F. K. Miers of Decatur was a business visitor here Thursday.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR MISS RUBIN

Macon, Feb. 4.—Miss Lela Rubin was pleasantly surprised Thursday evening by the members of the B. B. club in honor of her birthday, at the house of Mrs. Perry Vanters.

Miss Rubin received a nice gift from the club in remembrance of the occasion. Refreshments of ice cream and cakes were served. The evening was spent in music and social time.

Those who were present were Mrs. Maria Roberts and daughter Marjorie, Mrs. Irene Newsham, Mrs. H. Booher, Misses Frances Enterman, Felecia Schellas, Lorene Lancaster, Gladys and Alberta Riggin.

The members of the B. B. club will hold their next regular meeting Feb. 5 at the home of Misses Gladys and Alberta Riggin.

Mrs. C. C. Cox entertained the members of the Fortnightly club at her home Thursday afternoon. The afternoon was spent in a social way.

A two-course luncheon was served.

Mrs. W. C. Patterson of Decatur spent the week-end with her daughter, Mrs. R. Ferris.

Mrs. M. E. Blair has returned home after spending two months with relatives in Findlay.

The ladies of the Methodist Episcopal church served lunch at the Henry Lancaster Sale Thursday.

Mrs. Seth Ballinger and daughter of Decatur are spending a few days with Mrs. Mary Ballinger.

Mrs. M. N. Bridgewater and Miss Marla Guthridge were among the Decatur visitors Thursday.

William Blanchard of Decatur was a business visitor in Macon Thursday.

Word was received here Thursday of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. F. McMahon of Tiskilwa, Ill. She has been named Rose Mary.

Mrs. McMahon was formerly Miss Helen Moser of Macon.

Mrs. O. F. Plummer, who has been ill at the Decatur and Macon County hospital was able to return home Friday evening.

Miss Beatrice Jostes, who has been ill three weeks with scarlet fever, at her home west of town, is reported in a serious condition.

Mrs. Ella Walsh, Mrs. James Guthridge, Misses Elsie and Elizabeth Anderson were among the Decatur visitors Friday.

BERNECUTER SEEKS JUSTICE ROBES

Nashville, Ill., Feb. 4—Judge Louis Bernecuter, Republican, of this city, has announced his candidacy for the office of judge of the supreme court of Illinois from his district. Judge Bernecuter is at present serving his third term on the bench of his circuit.

SPRINGFIELD THIEF MURDERS OFFICER

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 4— G. W. Swettart, twenty-three, Springfield policeman, was killed Sunday night by an automobile thief he was pursuing near the city of Virden in Macoupin county. The policeman was driving with a girl companion on the St. Louis hard road near Virden when he saw a car he knew was stolen. He immediately gave chase. The automobile thief fired at him and killed him instantly. The policeman's car went into a ditch, but the girl was not injured. A man hunt has been organized, in charge of deputy sheriffs from both Sangamon and Macoupin counties.

Athlete Gives More Convincing Evidence

"My experience with Tanlac convinces me that it does a great work and my confidence in the medicine justifies me in recommending it in the strongest terms," this statement was made recently, by H. E. Edwards, 154 N. Menard Ave., Chicago, floor walker for a large department store.

"For about two years I was a keen sufferer from stomach trouble, which resulted in almost a complete breakdown. The gas from my undigested food would crowd my heart and produce a smothering sensation that kept me awake at night. My health had become so weakened on account of not being able to eat and digest sufficient food as to cause me considerable worry.

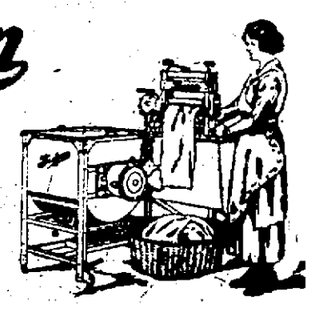

"Finally I read a testimonial like described my condition so well that I started on Tanlac, and now I am blessed with a state of good health equal to the best. In fact, Tanlac has brought me back to health, strength and efficiency I enjoyed in my younger days when I was an athlete."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 80 million bottles sold.

William Gushard Company

A Life Job

A few days ago one of our officials was asked, "How does the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) keep so many of its employes year after year?"

Speaking in a broad sense the answer lies in two words — "Industrial Harmony", gained through the every day practice of the principles of justice, fairness and equity within the organization.

Standard Oil Company (Indiana) employes know that the Company is engaged in a basic industry and that, therefore, continuity of employment is assured.

Every employe who has been in the Company's service for one year, or more, has the privilege of buying stock in the Company, up to 20% of his earnings, on a favorable basis. To every dollar the employe invests in this manner, the Company adds 50c. Thus does the Company provide a plan of assisting employes in accumulating a competence.

A few years ago the Company put into operation an annuity system, providing an income for those employes who have reached old age in the Company's service or who may have been incapacitated while so engaged.

Within the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) there is an internal organization—the Industrial Relations Department — which provides an open channel for men and women to bring their grievances to the attention of the Management for adjustment, and which enables them to have a voice in all matters pertaining to their employment and their working conditions. Since the inauguration of this plan 93.3% of the suggestions submitted to the Management have been made effective.

Therefore, with continuity of employment assured—with assistance in acquiring a competence — with provision for income when active work-days are over — and with an open door for submitting grievances, with ample precedent for anticipating equitable adjustment—is it to be wondered at that employes make Standard Oil Company (Indiana) business their life job?

Is it surprising that every Standard Oil Company (Indiana) employe with whom you come in contact, puts forth an enthusiastic effort to render you a full measure of service? The business of the Company is his business.

It is peace of mind within the individual and harmony prevailing throughout the organization that enables this Company to render such superior service as to have gained the respect, confidence and esteem of the thirty million people of the Middle West.

The Eight Ages In The Career of Woodrow Wilson

1—As a young lawyer. 2—As a young professor at Wesleyan. 3—As governor of New Jersey. 4—At the time of his inauguration as president. 5—During the war period. 6—While touring the country in defense of the League of Nations. 7—On his 65th birthday. 8—At President Harding's funeral ceremony in Washington.

Wilson Always Was Man of Distinction

Mark Sullivan Pens Word Picture of "One of Those Personalities That Appear Once In So Often."

By Mark Sullivan.

[illegible]

... of mind and temperament that brought comfort and refreshment to his spirit were P. M. Bar[illegible] of New York, Senator Carter Glass of Virginia and Vance McCormick of Harrisburg, Pa., all of whom in one office or another had been important agents in Wilson's conduct of the war and in his effort to achieve the kind of peace he tried to make. In addition there was one other who was not only a steadfast friend but his physician and wise counsellor as well, Dr. Cary Grayson.

STAGE TOO EARLY

[illegible] ... Wilson's career, the time is too early, the data is not all available and the occasion is not wholly appropriate. The writer ventures to express the conviction that Wilson belongs in comfortable company among the giants. To say this is not merely the mood of the moment. It is the result of much observation and of an effort of reflection so great that the mere quantity of it is an evidence of how compelling, how demanding of thought Mr. Wilson's personality and career were. That personality might inspire you to be sympathetic or it might [illegible]. Wilson's purposes might commend themselves to you or [illegible]. But in either event you were compelled to admit the quality of the personality and the fineness of the purposes.

LINCOLN AND WILSON

Without attempting to expand further on this, the writer suggests a reflection which happens to have come to him with the insistent emphasis of frequent recurrence. It is a [illegible] combination of contrasts and analogy between Lincoln's last days and Wilson's.

It is to the effect that if Lincoln had not been assassinated, if he had lived [illegible] five years after the civil war, his after experience would have been much like Wilson's. Lincoln while the war was on had proclaimed to the world as his expression of purpose "with malice toward none, with charity toward all." If Lincoln had lived and had tried to carry that out, this humane and lofty spirit in the details of the peace and reconstruction, he would have been [illegible] ... and [illegible] ... of a generous and humane reconstruction.

Wilson on his part had proclaimed purposes about the end of the war he led which were in the same spirit as Lincoln's, but when Wilson undertook to carry his exalted purpose he met the fate that Lincoln would have met if he had not had—one feels justified in saying it this way—the good fortune to be assassinated. To make this analogy between Wilson and Lincoln more vivid and convincing turn it around and consider what would have been the universal verdict without a dissenting voice if Wilson had happened to die as Lincoln did a few weeks after the end of the war he conducted—at the moment, say in November 1918, just after the armistice and before the Paris peace conference when Wilson was at the apex of the place he filled in the world.

JUST HIS FATE

If Wilson had died at that moment the instant verdict about him would have been much the same as the verdict on Lincoln. But it was Wilson's fate to live longer and to pass through that phase of after war anger and bitterness that heaped itself on him when he tried to construct the peace according to the spirit of the war time proclamation of purpose. Having lived through that, the final verdict on Wilson must wait for the passing of years and the calm judgment of historians free from the emotion of the time to restore him to the place he is entitled to.

[illegible] ... Next [illegible] ... this was [illegible] ... permitted to do so.

HAD SENTIMENT

[illegible] ... a few months ago that he was a tired, sick man struggling hard to regain his strength because there is so much to be done. Mr. Wilson carried on a very large correspondence, some with old friends and partisans, some with strangers in every part of the world who had been attracted by his ideas. Aside from this he passed his time in reading and reflection.

Probably it would be safe to guess that he got much spiritual sustenance from the personal philosophy he long ago worked out for himself, part of which is suggested by two favorite poems, Wadsworth's "Happy Warrior" and Kipling's "If."

WHIMSICAL HUMOR

To old personal friends who called on him, he revealed not only serious reflections about what should be done, but also a whimsical humor about the course of the world. Among the friends who called most often who had in their personalities ...

LIFE HISTORY OF WOODROW WILSON

One of the war Presidents of the United States burdened by problems and tasks as great if not greater than those borne by Washington and Lincoln, the words and works of Woodrow Wilson are still too vivid in the public mind to assure them of a complete appraisal.

A decade or two hence perhaps the world will fix upon his great Americans its estimate of his eight years service as the chief magistrate of the republic that furnished $15,000,000,000 nearly five millions of men and almost inexhaustible war material to end the deadlock between the Allies and the Central Powers and bring Germany to defeat in the historic struggle of 1914-1918.

UNFURLED THE WAR

It was under Woodrow Wilson's leadership that the United States abandoned its policy of isolation and became an active participant in world affairs. The republic underwent a national metamorphosis. Mr. Wilson, dubbed the schoolmaster in politics, formerly head of Princeton University, was the first Democrat since Andrew Jackson to serve two terms as President.

He began smashing precedents almost immediately after his induction into office by delivering his addresses in person before Congress and finished by going to Europe to attend the Peace Conference. He went abroad twice, first in December 1918 and again in March 1919.

At times he was the most idolized and the most bitterly assailed President since Abraham Lincoln. Friends extolled him as the peace maker of the world, enemies declared he had thrown to the winds Washington's warnings of entangling alliances with foreign powers.

STARTED TOUR

The war over and the Treaty of Versailles which he personally had helped to draft, he [illegible] signed [illegible] the Big Four—Clemenceau, Lloyd George, Orlando and Wilson—the President returned from France to begin a few months later on Sept. 3, 1919, a 10,000-mile speaking tour of the United States in behalf of the League of Nations covenant which was part of the treaty. A conservative Senate threatened and did block its ratification. During 26 days of almost constant travel he delivered speeches aggregating 150,000 words.

Working his way east from the Pacific coast he had planned to make many more addresses in behalf of the League but reaching Wichita, Kas., suffered a physical collapse which caused him regretfully to abandon his tour.

DESPERATELY ILL

At times during the following months he was desperately ill and had recovered only sufficiently as late as March 4, 1921, to accompany Warren G. Harding, his successor, to the capitol for participation in part of the inauguration ceremony. Previous to this he had made only one public appearance in all that time on June 16, 1920 and there were many alarming rumors regarding the state of his health.

Relieved of the cares of office Mr. Wilson's convalescence was more rapid and although he did not regain entirely his one time robust health he was able to engage in the practice of law in Washington in partnership with Bainbridge Colby, his former Secretary of State. The former President and Mrs. Wilson resided there in a beautiful home which they purchased for $150,000 some months before his retirement. Before leaving the White House, however he was the recipient of a signal honor.

GOT NOBEL PRIZE

The Nobel Prize was awarded to Mr. Wilson as the person who has promoted most or best the fraternity of nations and the abolishment or diminution of standing armies and the formation and increase of peace congresses. In accepting it President Wilson wrote on Dec. 11, 1920: "The cause of peace and the cause of truth are of one family. Even as those who love science and devote their lives to physics or chemistry even as those who create new and higher ideals for mankind in literature even so with those who love peace, there is no limit set." Whatever has been accomplished in the past is petty compared to the glory of the promise of the future.

While President Wilson had frequent differences of opinion with the members of his cabinet there were only two or three falling outs during the entire eight years of his administration. Before his first inaugural he had come to the parting of the ways with the late William J. McCombs and with Col. George Harvey, two original Wilson men, both of whom had worked for his nomination [illegible].

McCOMBS ATTACK

McCombs who had been chairman of the Democratic National Committee declined Wilson's offer of an ambassadorship to France and wrote a book shortly before his death in which he charged the President with bad faith and gross ingratitude and severely criticised McAdoo, Bryan and other associates of Mr. Wilson. Col. Harvey as early as 1901 had referred to Wilson's availability as a presidential candidate.

When in 1912 as editor of Harper's Weekly after consistently booming Wilson he asked him whether he thought the support of his paper was injuring his political prospects because of a charge then current that Harper's was controlled by a Wall Street banking firm the candidate bluntly said "I do." In spite of Wilson's efforts to heal the breach he had caused by his own admitted tactless candor, Harvey discontinued his support and their friendship ceased. Colonel Harvey in 1921 was appointed ambassador to England by President Harding.

BRYAN QUITS

The Wilson cabinet changes notably few were started in 1915 when William J. Bryan, secretary of state opposed to the president's handling of his warning notes to Germany, resigned. A year later Lindley M. Garrison, secretary of war relinquished his post as the result of a sharp difference of opinion with the president over the need for preparedness, Garrison maintaining that the country's military strength was inadequate.

Bryan was succeeded by Robert Lansing and Garrison by Newton D. Baker, former mayor of Cleveland, O. In 1920 Lansing was asked to resign as secretary of state for Bainbridge Colby following a statement by the president that Lansing's views on important international questions were opposed to his own.

VERITABLE LIBRARY

A veritable library on Wilson, the peace conference and similar subjects appeared soon after the president's return to civil life. Notable among these were volumes by Mr. Lansing, Col. Edward M. House, the president's confidential adviser, and Joseph P. Tumulty, his private secretary. Lansing's book dealt largely with the president's alleged blunders at the peace conference and his reputed subservience to Lloyd George and Clemenceau, the premiers of England and France.

A. C. Gardiner, a famous British character analyst, in an appraisal of Wilson's personality after his retirement called him a moralist in politics and said that many of his troubles came from his "rigorous and unyielding habit of mind" and his inability to "manage men."

KEPT ALOOFNESS

A little slackening of the moral tension, wrote Mr. Gardiner, a sweetening of the public air with the spirit of fun which irradiates his private life would have based his path enormously and perhaps profoundly changed the course of history. Wilson is widely different from Lincoln who used inferior men with a noble magnanimity even while he knew they were disloyal to him.

Hence the sense of aloofness of Wilson from the popular mind, his air of the recluse, his reputation of the inaccessible autocrat. Behind this play of fancy dwells the spirit of the Scotch Covenanter. He thinks hard, he thinks straight, he thinks alone and he is not afraid to act.

THREE PERIODS

Three interesting periods characterized Woodrow Wilson's entrance into public life. Elected president of Princeton university in 1902, the country at that time obtained its first glimpse of him as a national figure. This was accentuated by what has been called his fight for the "democratization" of the university in which student cliques were abolished and the sons of rich and poor men were encouraged to fraternize. Eight years later in 1910 he was elected governor of New Jersey.

Governor Wilson's administration was notable chiefly for his advocacy of progressive legislation. Political opponents charged him with radicalism. The Seven Sisters laws, a series of seven bills drafted at his recommendation were passed after a legislative contest. They forbade the incorporation of predatory trusts within the commonwealth, New Jersey previously having been used as a sanctuary for monopolists.

DRAMATIC INCIDENT

The nomination of Governor Wilson to the presidency by the national Democratic convention in June 1912 at Baltimore after a long deadlock was one of the most dramatic episodes in American political history. Then followed his election the following November when he received 435 votes in the electoral college to 88 for Colonel Roosevelt and eight for Mr. Taft who had been renominated by the Republican party to succeed himself.

During President Wilson's two terms there occurred a world upheaval such as had never before been witnessed since the dawn of time. Empires tumbled and thrones collapsed. The map of Europe was torn asunder. China that aeon old monarchy had already become a republic and with the ending of the World War Russian autocracy had been humbled in the dust. German militarism was crushed, Austria Hungary dismembered and Turkey driven out of the Holy Land.

GREAT DEMONSTRATION

Two days after announcing to congress his decision to go to Europe to attend the peace conference on Dec. 4, 1918 he sailed for France with Mrs. Wilson aboard the steamship George Washington leaving New York amid one of the greatest demonstrations ever accorded an American citizen. He arrived at Brest on December 13 and upon reaching Paris took up his residence in the mansion of the Prince Murat as a guest of the nation. Following the big public reception upon his arrival in the French capital which lasted four days the president conferred with Premier Clemenceau, Colonel House and Herbert Hoover who was later designated as director general of allied relief in Europe and who expended $2,800,000,000 in all in his mission of mercy abroad.

The people of Paris presented Mr. Wilson with the city's great gold medal and gave Mrs. Wilson a diamond and enamel brooch. Later the president and his wife visited the kings and queens of England, Italy and Belgium.

FRIEND OF HUMANITY

Upon his first trip to Paris Mr. Wilson was everywhere acclaimed as "the friend of humanity" and the man who had come to put "an end to all wars." No monarch of ancient times was ever accorded greater laudation or listened to with greater admiration. It seemed as if all Europe hung upon the words that fell from his lips. He was acclaimed as a practical idealist, the representative of a mighty new land whose people were altruistic and unselfish and who desired to see the devastated world restored to amity and happiness.

Before his departure in an address to congress he repeated his famous "fourteen points" which he said constituted America's interest in the forthcoming council at Versailles. Presentation of these "points" one of which provided for the League of Nations covenant, precipitated the bitter controversy in congress which lasted for many months. It engendered such opposition to the president's plans that upon his return to Europe on the second stage of his mission he was less cordially received. Especially was this the case in certain parts of Italy where because of his attitude on Fiume his name was hissed. French newspapers also excoriated him and he was denounced by a London newspaper as an autocrat.

CRITICIZED AT HOME

At home he was criticized for assenting to the Shantung decision and for alleged failure to maintain "open covenants of peace instead of secret diplomacy." Senator Poindexter, Republican, in a speech accused him of being "the worst menace" in America because of his friendship for organized labor and his tendency toward radical doctrinnaires. Other critics accused him of gross extravagance abroad and said he had accepted almost priceless gifts.

President Wilson's participation in the Peace Conference was placid it is said except for occasional ripples that disturbed his usual calm. Tension at times was reported between him and Clemenceau and Lloyd George, Premier Hughes of Australia and Premier Orlando of Italy, the latter at one stage of the negotiations quitting the conference and returning to Rome with his colleagues because of Mr. Wilson's attitude on the Adriatic question.

REPLY TO ORLANDO

In answer to Italy's claim for Fiume he was quoted as having ironically told Orlando: "I am sorry we cannot give you New York." The President's stand on self determination for small nations encouraged national aspirations in Ireland, Korea, Egypt and other countries allegiant to certain of the Allied powers. The Russian catastrophe and affairs on the Mexican border also added to the President's grave problems.

The treaty with Germany was signed on June 28, 1919 by the President and other representatives of the Big Four and shortly after Mr. Wilson sailed for New York. Before his departure from Brest he expressed his satisfaction with the settlements arrived at in Paris. Then followed his nationwide tour and its abrupt termination.

BORN DEC. 28, 1856

Born in Staunton, Va., Dec. 28, 1856 of Scotch Irish parentage and christened Thomas Woodrow Wilson, the future President was known as "Tommy" until he graduated from Princeton in 1879 and was thereafter known only as Woodrow Wilson. His father, the Rev. Joseph Ruggles Wilson, a prominent Presbyterian minister moved to Augusta, Ga., when Woodrow was two years old. Later the family went to Columbia, S. C. and there young Wilson, at the age of 17 entered Davidson College, leaving soon to go to Princeton. Upon graduating he studied law in the University of Virginia and in 1882 began the practice of law in Atlanta, Ga.

While in Atlanta and at Augusta he became engaged to marry Miss Ellen Louise Axsen, daughter of a Presbyterian clergyman of Savannah, Ga. The young lawyer's clients were few and he soon abandoned a legal career. For two years thereafter he was a student at Johns Hopkins University and while there published his first book "Congressional Government," a study of American politics. It won recognition both in the United States and abroad and is believed to have been influential in evoking offers of professorships from Bryn Mawr College and Wesleyan University. He married Miss Axsen on June 24, 1885.

DIFFERENT CHAIRS

He became successively professor of history and political economy at Bryn Mawr and at Wesleyan University and later professor of jurisprudence and political economy at Princeton where subsequently he was made head of that institution. Meanwhile Professor Wilson had gained high reputation as a writer.

Some of his works with the date of their production, were as follows: "The State—Elements of Historical and Practical Politics" (1889), "Division and Reunion," (1893), "George Washington" (1896), "A History of the American People," (1902), "Constitutional Government in the United States" (1908), "Free Life" (1913), "The New Freedom" (1913), "When a Man Comes To Himself" (1915), "On Being Human," (1916), "An Old Master and Other Political Essays" and "Mere Literature and Other Essays" were among his earlier writings. His state papers, notes to belligerent governments and addresses to Congress, would fill many volumes.

HONORARY DEGREES

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was bestowed upon him by Wake Forest College (1887), Tulane University (1893), Johns Hopkins (1902), Brown University (1903), Harvard University (1907), Williams College (1908) and Dartmouth College (1909). Yale made him a Doctor of Literature in 1901.

In an intimate pen picture of the President drawn by himself before the National Press Club in Washington Mr. Wilson once said: "When I think of the number of men who are looking to me as the representative of a party with the hope for all varieties of salvage from the things they are struggling with in the midst of it it makes me tremble. It makes me tremble with a sense of my own inadequacy and weakness and if I seem circumspect it is because I am diligently trying not to make any colossal blunders."

CALLED AUTOCRAT

A curious fact of Mr. Wilson's career was that when a young man he wrote an article under the names of Thomas W. Wilson in which he deprecated the tendency toward autocracy in American Presidents. This was in 1879. Thirty eight years later, on the floor of the United States Senate Lawrence Y. Sherman, a Republican Senator from Illinois savagely assailed Mr. Wilson as an autocrat and offered a resolution declaring his office vacant. The resolution was tabled.

Princeton with its great oaks, its shaded lawns and historic halls furnished the setting in which Mr. Wilson did much of the literary work which later commanded the attention of the world. His family life was ideal and serene. Surrounded by his wife and three daughters—Margaret, Jessie and Eleanor—the fierce controversy which raged over the preservation of democratic ideals at the University disturbed him but little.

NOT POLITICIAN

Heretofore he had not been regarded as a politician. Indeed it had commonly been reported that the president of Princeton, never a wealthy man, was contemplating retirement upon a teacher's pension in 1910. In September of that year he was nominated by the Democrats for governor of New Jersey. Elected the following November he served until March 1913 when he resigned to take up his duties at Washington.

The policy of the new administration was outlined in one of the briefest inaugural addresses ever made to congress. Among other innovations Mr. Wilson announced a policy of "pitiless publicity" and, until May 1916, gave semi-weekly audiences to the Washington newspaper correspondents. He said the White House would be "wide open," but correspondents were not seen by him during the war.

When the European conflict burst upon the world in all its fury, President Wilson in an address to his fellow countrymen counselled them to be strictly neutral. Exerting every effort to avert the dawning of the United States into the maelstrom, for nearly three years he drew upon himself the bitterest criticism of some of his staunchest friends. About this time, speaking of the example of America in regard to peace, he said:

TOO PROUD TO FIGHT.

"There is such a thing as a man being too proud to fight. There is such a thing as a nation being so right that it does not need to convince others by force that it is right."

Popular resentment against peace at any price was rising in America. Fighting Europe ridiculed Mr. Wilson's policy but later accepted the explanation of his friends that he was manoeuvering for delay, that the United States was not prepared to take a big part in the struggle, that the nation was not unitedly for war by reasons of its diverse population and divided sentiment.

FIRST WIFE DIED

A tragic moment in the president's life came when sitting at the bedside of his dying wife he penned a message to the European powers suggesting a peaceful settlement. Mrs. Wilson died on Aug. 6, 1914, and the president took her body to her girlhood home in Rome, Ga., for burial. The family circle had been broken only a short time previously by the marriage of two of the president's daughters, Jessie and Eleanor, one to Francis Bowes Sayre and the other to William G. McAdoo, then secretary of the treasury. Mrs. Wilson's death left the president alone except for his eldest daughter, Margaret, who was absent much of the time in welfare work.

Mrs. Wilson's death plunged the president into deep personal grief. With it came the anxiety of guiding the country aright in a world afire. To add to his perplexities, the practices of the German government—particularly in submarine warfare were inexplicable to men of honesty and candor. He found it hard to believe that the innumerable atrocities charged against U-boat commanders could be attributed to the order of the German government but his disillusionment finally came after the most prolonged exchange of notes and warnings.

LUSITANIA SUNK.

On May 7, 1915, the great steamship Lusitania was torpedoed and sunk off the coast of Ireland with the loss of 1,500 lives, more than 110 of them American and many women and children. There was a widespread clamor in the United States for war.

Ship after ship had been sent to the bottom without warning and this climax came with the sinking on March 24, 1916, of the English channel steamer Sussex. The president, in a final note served notice on the German emperor that he might expect war with the United States if the "inhuman and illegal" practices continued. His warning to Germany that she would be held to "a strict accountability" and his later declaration that America would use "force without limit," stirred responsive chords in the hearts of most Americans.

BREAK WITH BERLIN.

President Wilson accordingly broke off diplomatic relations with the Berlin government and gave Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, his passports. Everybody knew it meant war, that the conflict was close at hand.

Meanwhile, a happy domestic event in the President's life served to lighten the burden of his official cares. He was married to Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt, the widow of a Washington merchant, who immediately became his constant companion and confidante.

VERGING ON TURMOIL.

Internal affairs in the United States early in 1917 were in a state of restlessness verging on turmoil. Enemy propagandists were busy night and day. The increasing cost of living was of grave concern to wage earners. Scores of strikes in industrial plants and on railroads were fomented by Austro-German plotters financed by Count von Bernstorff and aids of Dr. Constantin Theodor Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, who had been sent back to Vienna.

The United States never had been a military nation. Her regular army establishment of 75,000 men seemed pitifully weak when England and France were sending millions of fighters to the battle line. President Wilson at once urged the passage of a Conscription Bill by Congress by which men from 21 to 31 were to be drawn by lot. It was called the "Selective Service Act" and, based upon the experiences of the other Allied nations, was intended to raise an army without demoralizing essential trade and industry. The law was enacted after an exciting but short debate in both Houses on April 28, 1917, just three weeks after the United States declared herself to be in "a state of war with Germany." Subsequently a similar declaration was issued against Austria.

START THE DRAFT.

Draft machinery was put in motion and, despite the decision of the German General Staff, "The most remarkable achievement in the history of all warfare," according to General Peyton C. March, the American chief of staff, was accomplished. Training camps were located throughout the country and within a year nearly 2,000,000 armed and equipped soldiers were landed in England and France. A second draft, registering men from 18 to 21 and from 31 to 45 was ordered to bring America's fighting force in Europe up to 4,-250,000 men, but few of these were called as the Central Powers shortly after collapsed.

NAVAL POWERFUL.

Meanwhile the United States Navy had been greatly augmented and on Nov. 11, 1918, when the armistice was signed, she had 398 warships and 76,000 enlisted men in service abroad.

The President was largely instrumental in organizing during this period the Emergency Fleet Corporation, the War Industries Board, and the Food and Fuel Administration and other war bodies all of which came in for a great deal of criticism. One of these, the Aircraft Production Division was accused of gross irregularities, extravagance and delay. It was charged that more than $650,000,000 which had been appropriated by Congress for this department had been practically wasted. The President designated former Justice Hughes to investigate the allegations, some of which were sustained and others of which were dismissed with the observation that "there is no law to punish men for inefficiency." It was found, however, that no one was criminally culpable.

Not the least important of other war measures adopted at the behest of Mr. Wilson during his second administration were the Federalization of the railroads, cables, telephones and telegraph systems and the plan for the upbuilding by the government itself of a great American merchant marine. For the last named purpose alone Congress appropriated the sum of $2,850,000,000. Later these public untilities were returned to private control.

INTO RETIREMENT.

After Woodrow Wilson left the White House in 1921 he took to the life of a retired man of letters, which he continued until his death.

He lived alone with his wife in a comparatively modest home for a man of his place, and maintained most of the time a modest establishment of three servants and a used car.

AN "8 HOUR DAY."

His daily routine was modelled on the eight-hour day which he once told congress was "adjudged by the thought and experience of recent years, a thing upon which society is justified in insisting as in the interest of health, efficiency and contentment."

He always said grace before meals even in the days when life was at a low ebb and he had to steady himself on the back of his dining chair and whisper the words. He never failed before closing his eyes, for what he knew always might be the last time, to read aloud a few verses from the Bible which laid on the table at his bedside.

REALIZED CONDITION.

Fighting for life day by day Woodrow Wilson realized that he lived in the presence of death. A man of his age, stricken with a similar ailment—paralysis and general breakdown—seldom lives long. The best medical skill, careful nursing and the constant attention of a devoted wife, however, lengthened his span of life toward the three score and ten as even his most ardent well wishers had not dared to hope.

Wilson Had Few Intimate Friends

Washington, Feb. 4—(AP)—Woodrow Wilson's personality was in many respects the most unusual that ever inhabited the White House. It commanded from millions an admiration approaching worship; it aroused in others aversion amounting to hatreds.

Mr. Wilson acknowledged he had a "single track mind." Friends acknowledged he was reserved; critics said he was cold. His few intimate friends declared he was neither, and claimed him one of the most delightful of associates.

ONLY TWO MEN.

Mr. Wilson's seclusion and scarcity of intimates were among his outstanding characteristics. It was said he called only two men by their first names, Cleveland H. Dodge and Cyrus H. McCormick. Even E. M. House of Texas, never won a state, where Mr. Wilson called him "Ed" or "Edward."

The one enduring friendship which Mr. Wilson made was with his personal physician, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson. They never quarrel although their friendship was a most intimate one.

HIS OWN DECISIONS.

Woodrow Wilson had a way of making his own decisions. When he was working through a crucial moment, he invariably shut himself up in his study and worked the thing out on his typewriter. When he got mad it was his favorite trick to jam on his hat and walk around the block to cool off. He did that when he heard the German had torpedoed the Lusitania. Then he penned the historic note to Germany.

He read it to the cabinet after it had started to Berlin. Having decided on a course he wanted no advice. Cabinet meetings in the Wilson administration were described by those who chafed under the restraints as a morning in the school-room with the "school master."

MUCH EXAGGERATION.

There was a great deal exaggeration about Mr. Wilson's penchant for reading detective stories, although he did do some light reading. He took to golf as a health measure at his doctor's order, and learned to like it; he liked light music and the theater when the entertainment was diverting. He confessed he had no digestion for grand opera and the heavier drama.

Many of his associates called him ruthless and others called him ungrateful while others recalled marks of the warmest personal consideration. One thing he regarded as sacred and not to be trespassed upon under any consideration was his family life.

When he left the White House he continued a life of seclusion in which his only diversions were motor rides and an occasional visit to a vaudeville show.

CHIEF EVENTS OF WILSON'S TERM

Washington, Feb. 4—(AP)—Here were the principal events during the Wilson administration:

The World War.

Refusal of the senate to ratify treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations covenant.

Negotiation of arbitration treaties with Great Britain, Japan and many other countries.

Military occupancy of Haiti, Santo Domingo and Vera Cruz.

Why Wood Was Kept In U. S. Bared In Wilson Letter

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 4—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood was not given a command in France primarily because General Pershing did not wish him to have one and, secondly, because President Wilson, though crediting Wood with "unusual ability," thought him "apparently absolutely unable to submit his judgment to those who were superior to him in command."

The question raised during the war and frequently called up in the subsequent years was answered Sunday when The Springfield Republican, considering that Mr. Wilson's death gave it the liberty, made public a personal letter to the editor of the newspaper written by the president on June 5, 1918.

LETTER ANSWERS EDITORIAL.

Mr. Wilson's letter was a rejoinder to an editorial of the newspaper, calling attention to General Wood's abilities and popular following, and observing, in substance, that if it were not the administration's purpose to send General Wood to the battle front, it should make that decision only on adequate grounds.

LETTER MADE PUBLIC.

A few days after publication of its editorial, The Republican received from Mr. Wilson the personal letter which was made public, and in part is as follows:

"The White House, Washington, June 5, 1918.

"To the Editor of The Republican:

I hope you will not be surprised to know that I subscribed almost in its entirety to the inclosed editorial from The Republican.

"I am keenly aware of and keenly sensitive to the implications which will be drawn out of the fact that I am not sending General Wood to the other side.

"In the first place, I am not sending him because General Pershing has said that he does not want him, and in the second place, General Pershing's disinclination to have General Wood sent over is only too well founded. Wherever General Wood goes there is controversy and conflict of judgment. On this side of the water we can take care of things of that sort, because the fighting is not being done here, but it would be fatal to let it go on at or anywhere near the front.

USE ABILITY IN U. S.

"I have had a great deal of experience with General Wood, he is a man of unusual ability, but apparently absolutely unable to submit his judgment to those who are superior to him in command.

"With sincere regard,

"Faithfully yours,

(Signed) WOODROW WILSON."

Wilson Died Believing In League Doctrines

War-Time President Accepted Himself As Casualty of World Conflict.

BY JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.

(Copyright 1924.)

Washington, Feb. 4 — Woodrow Wilson accepted himself as a casualty of the war.

To this extent, and to this alone, he some times apparently admitted the failure of his personal doctrine of pre-ordination. He died as he had lived, supremely confident in his belief that the principles for which he stood—and fought even to the extent of alienating some whose opinions he most cherished—eventually would triumph.

There was no better exemplification of the entire Wilson personality than his attitude in his address of last Armistice Day. Suggestions had been made in advance of that occasion that he would issue a "message of love." In fact certain sources had suggested that he might, in the light of the years that had passed, so often his original position and open the way for a reconsiliation with those who had been willing to follow him at least part way.

Nothing of the kind, it will be recalled, took place. Instead his utterances were even more bitter than any previous.

"THAT GOD REIGNS."

"That we shall prevail is assure as that God reigns."

This was his keynote phrase. The former president likewise insisted that the nation's memories of its day of triumph, "are forever marred and embittered" by "the shameful fact that we turned our backs upon our associates' and "withdrew into a sullen and selfish isolation which is deeply ignoble because manifestly cowardly and dishonorable."

None who "listened in" that night are likely ever to forget the intensity of the emotion apparent in the speaker. His voice was trembling. It rose to shrill heights and dropped to cracked whispers. The prompting of Mrs. Wilson at his side plainly was audible. The impressions, especially, "out in the sticks," where many heard, were weird in the extreme. Yet probably nothing so emplified the man Wilson as this somewhat bizarre performance did.

FOR OR AGAINST.

His never was a character which made for tolerance. "If you are not for me you are against me," well might have been coined as his most familiar phrase. With the former president there never was a middle ground. Everyone who knew him, personally or by reputation, either believed without question in the man and his policies, or rejected them as anathema in every particular.

He neither gave nor expected quarter. Early in his public career he had deliberately thrown overboard James Smith, Jr., of Newark, N. J., who more than any other individual had made possible his election to the governorship of New Jersey. Smith was the apparent choice of the Democratic majority of the New Jersey senate for election to the United States senate.

SUPPORTED MARTINE.

But Gov. Wilson, seizing on the technically that James Martine, who had been defeated for election every time he had appeared before the people for any and all offices, had secured the majority of the scanty few who voted in the senatorial primary, got behind Martine and eventually compelled his election.

This action he warmly defended as in the interests of the people and the states. At Baltimore it was William Jennigs Bryan who, by bolting Champ Clark, and assailing "Wall Street" brought about the deadlock which made the eventual nomination—and later election—of Wilson possible. Yet when the disagreement with Bryan, came because of the submarine note sent to Germany, which the Nebraskan insisted meant nothing less than war, Woodrow Wilson accepted the resignation of his secretary of state although after all it was a matter of record he modified the phrase to which Bryan originally had objected:

MEN INSTRUMENTS.

Men simply were instruments to be used to meet the occasion, after all, was the position of Mr. Wilson. He spared none. But, then, he did not spare himself. That he was jockeyed into the position in Europe where he eventually had to fight with his back against the wall undoubtedly was due to his selecting his associates on the American peace commission to be his subordinates instead of his equals. It was his plan and his alone that he intended forcing acceptance.

Yet those who on the ground witnessed his futile fight always have contended that, had he stayed at home and pulled the strings, or taken with him men of more positive character, who would have jammed his beliefs down the throats of all with whom they came into contact, the peace would have been as complete as was the armistice when he finally came back home the following July to face the senate and the country.

POPULAR IDOL.

Woodrow Wilson reached France a popular idol on Dec. 13, 1918. He demanded an immediate conference of the peace envoys of the allied and associated powers. Clemenceau pleaded for time. There were "social functions" to be gotten out of the way. Lloyd George backed up the Tiger.

The British premier insisted he had the details of his parlimentary program to arrange. Meanwhile he suggested that Wilson could visit England; go to Carlisle to pay his respects to the former home of his forbears, and then proceed to Italy. When that was over it would be time enough for the president to get together with the men who were to be equally responsible with him for the working out of the peace and talk about the terms that must be enforced.

PROGRAM OF DELAY.

It was a grand program of delay. It worked its will. The English trip was an ovation to the president. Everywhere he was proclaimed the "Savior of the World." In Italy similar triumphs of a personal nature were repeated.

In Rome, in Milan, in Genoa, at other points the common people accepted Woodrow Wilson as the one individual who could bring tranquility back to a tortured world. He was touched as never before by the simple faith that was manifested. But even then he seemed to realize that there was a conspiracy against him. En route back to Paris early in January he summoned the three correspondents who had made the trip with him to his car and told them that Italy was determined to dominate the Adriatic and insist on the carrying out of the "pact of London."

STATED HIS POLICY.

He explained that he would not allow this. Later on he made good this threat in the big four conferences but only by practically demolishing the influence of the government then in power at Rome and forcing her peace delegation to return to the Eternal City.

Back in Paris Woodrow Wilson discovered that in his absence Clemenceau and Lloyd George had arrived at an understanding to oppose any and all leniency for Germany on the part of the powers which might be fathered by the American delegations. When the peace conference actually opened, and the work of preparation of the terms to be submitted to Germany was begun, he found that he was in an utterly hopeless minority. That was his position when he finally signed the ill fated treaty of Versailles. At every stage he met with disappointment. That was betrayed by some of the men in whom he trusted also is easily provable. Probably it will be now that he is dead and the necessity for secrecy has passed.

ONLY SALVATION.

Mr. Wilson told his fellow members of the commission that only a League of Nations would save the situation. He compelled agreement by the other interested powers that the constitution of the league should be made a part of the treaty. Yet during the few short weeks that he was back in America later in February, and early in March, members of the American commission went over to the enemy and agreed to scuttle the league and make a peace dominated by conquest alone. En-route back to France in March, 1919, the then president found this out. Even before landing he repudiated the agreement and later imposed his will on the representatives of the other powers. But probably this one lapse, more than anything else, was responsible for the initiation of the opposition in the United States that eventually killed off the ratification of the treaty.

Coming home with the signed treaty in his possession Mr. Wilson was warned that unless he would compromise with the opposition in the senate the document could not be ratified. He indignantly rejected the suggestion. He went out to carry his fight to the people. But the strain of the several months fighting against Clemenceau, Lloyd George, Orlando and the others—including certain members of his own immediate party—proved too much and he finally broke down in health while enroute to Wichita, Kan., almost at the very end of the most exhaustive speaking tour any chief executive ever attempted.

HIS HUMAN SIDE.

There are several incidents of the European trip of the president that now may be emphasized. The human side of his character was well indicated while in Milan where he personally led the orchestra at a municipal dinner with a display of emotion that seemed entirely at variance with the coldness of his generally displayed nature.

In Carlisle he held a number of leading dignitarians waiting while he talked with an aged citizen who remembered his mother and related personal anecdotes of her as a girl. In Paris, when a delegation of Americans, waited upon him for what promised to prove a stormy session, he insisted a correspondent who was his guest at dinner stay "to see the fun" and then carefully sewed him up on writing anything that had transpired although the story was one which would have reflected credit on his policies.

ABOUT MRS. WILSON.

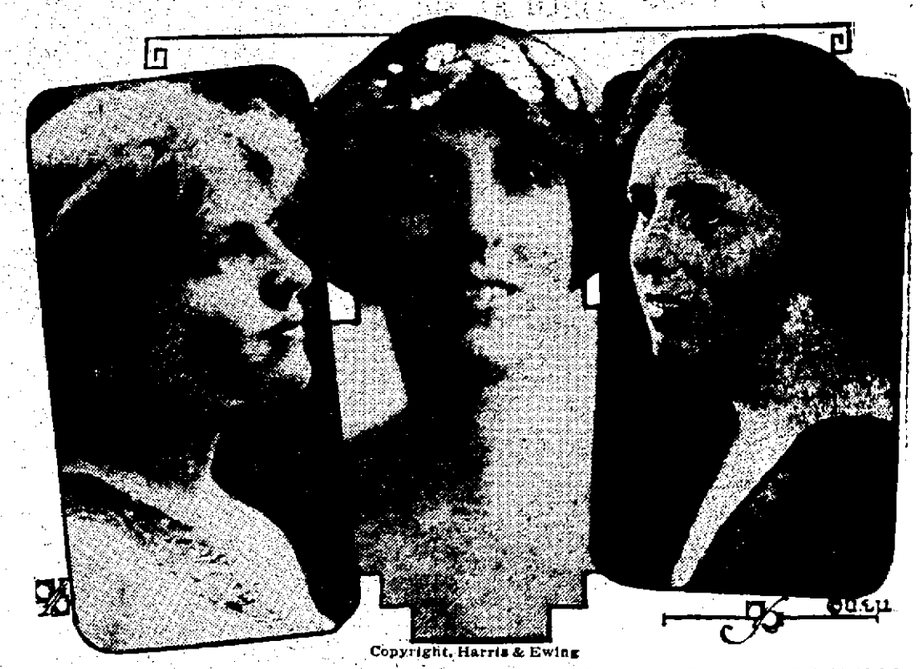

But mention of any incidents of the trip would be incomplete if the story of the loving disposition of Mrs. Wilson was not incorporated. Space in this account is too short even to hint at the manner in which she upheld the hands of her distinguished husband and guarded him as carefully as possible from ever fatigue and exertion.

When he was taken ill in Paris with what was described rather loosely at the time as an "attack of influenza," Mrs. Wilson banished all of the French cooks and servants from the kitchen, laid in a stock of American food from the quartermaster of the American army and proceeded in person to cook everything that the president ate not alone during his illness and period of convalence but for week thereafter.

The affection between President Wilson and his second wife impressed all. From the day of their marriage up until the hour and minute of his death she was in every way his counseller, his nurse and helpmate. When he was too tired to read himself—his chief relaxation in his few spare hours was to read aloud to members of the family and visitors—Mrs. Wilson herself read to him. She was always at his side watching him, anticipating his smallest desire, and aiding him in every possible way. Her devotion absolutely amazed everyone who came into contact with them on the other side and it was increased to a most remarkable degree after his health failed.

There were many other friends. But Mrs. Edith Bolling Wilson was to the president one wonderful woman and wife as everyone who knew him realized.

WORLD'S LEADERS PAY TRIBUTE TO WILSON

Rome, Feb. 4—Former Premier Orlando declared to be resentful of Woodrow Wilson's attitude respecting Italy's claim, declined to make a statement on his death.

Washington, Feb. 4.—Public men of all stations, and many of those who have attained places of national leadership outside of official life, paid tribute publicly Sunday night to the memory of Woodrow Wilson.

President Coolidge, in a proclamation declaring a period of official mourning, declared that Mr. Wilson's high motives and sincerity of purpose had made a new place for America in the affairs of the world. He had led the nation through the trials of the great war, the President said, "with a lofty idealism which never failed him."

Chief Justice Taft, now the only living ex-President, said of Mr. Wilson that he was a man of high ideals and great force of character who "will live in the ideals he preached and sought."

CONDENSED STATEMENTS.

The condensed statements of others:

WILLIAM G. McADOO—"Perhaps America's greatest man."

SENATOR HIRAM JOHNSON—"Able, firm and courageous. An outstanding character in history."

SAMUEL COMPERS—"True representative of American Ideals."

CORDELL HULL—"One of the greatest figures in American history."

JOHN T. ADAMS, G. O. P. National chairman—"Led us in one of our most trying periods."

SECRETARY HOOVER—"Time will stamp him great and his name will be cherished."

SECRETARY HUGHES — "Nation has lost a great leader."

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE—"The world has lost a leader. He will become one of the greatest figures in history."

THOMAS R. MARSHALL, former vice-president—"His good works will continue to live."

RAMSAY MACDONALD—"Mr. Wilson had a fine vision of reason and wisdom."

PREMIER POINCARE — "France can never forget Woodrow Wilson."

ROBERT LANSING, former secretary of state under Wilson—"No one can refuse tribute to the loftiness of his thought and purpose."

CLEMENCEAU—"He will remain one of the greatest figures of American history."

GOV. LEN SMALL—"The entire civilized world will mourn his passing."

POPE PIUS and KING VICTOR—Both express deep regret over his death.

WILSON MILESTONES

Washington, Feb. 4—(AP)—Woodrow Wilson's life was marked by these milestones:

Born at Staunton, Va., Dec. 28, 1856.

Graduated at Princeton University, 1879.

Selected as president of Princeton, Aug. 1, 1902, after seventeen years as college professor.

Elected governor of New Jersey, Nov. 10, 1910.

Nominated for President in Democratic national convention, Baltimore, July 2, 1912.

Elected President, Nov. 4, 1912. Inaugurated March 4, 1913.

Re-elected President, Nov. 7, 1916.

Asked Congress to declare war on Germany, April 2, 1917.

Sailed for France, Dec. 4, 1918, as head of American peace commission.

Signed treaty of Versailles, June 28, 1919.

Carried fight with Senate over League of Nations to country, Sept. 3, 1919.

Suffered nervous breakdown near Wichita, Kan., Sept. 26, 1919.

Stricken with paralysis at White House, Oct. 5, 1919.

Retired from presidency, March 4, 1921.

Died at Washington, Feb. 3, 1924.

JOHN ADAMS LIVED 25 YEARS AFTER HE QUIT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 4—The death of Woodrow Wilson after being out of office less than three years recalls the fact that one president lived more than twenty-five years after bidding good-by to the White House.

That was John Adams, who lived four months longer than a quarter of a century after his term expired.

DIE IN OFFICE.

Six presidents died in office. They were William Henry Harrison, who was president only one month; Zachary Taylor, who was president a little over a year; Warren G. Harding, who died Aug. 2, 1923, after serving two years, four months and twenty-nine days, and Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield, and William McKinley who were assassinated.

Grover Cleveland lived eleven years, three months, and twenty days after completing his second term, but as he was an ex-president four years before his second term began, he is entitled to fifteen years, three months, and twenty days.

Three former presidents died on the Fourth of July. They were John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, who passed away Independence day, 1826, and James Monroe, who died July 4, 1831.

OTHER PRESIDENTS.

The length of time former presidents lived after retiring from office follows:

John Adams, 25 years, 4 months.
Martin Van Buren, 21 years, 6 months, 20 days.
Millard Fillmore, 21 years, 8 days.
James Madison, 19 years, 3 months, 24 days.
John Quincy Adams, 18 years, 11 months, 19 days.
Thomas Jefferson, 17 years, 6 months.
John Tyler, 16 years, 10 months, 14 days.
Grover Cleveland, 15 years, 3 months 20 days.
Franklin Pierce, 12 years, 7 months, 4 days.
Rutherford B. Hayes, 11 years, 10 months, 13 days.
Theodore Roosevelt 9 years, 10 months, 2 days.
Ulysses S. Grant, 8 years, 4 months, 18 days.
Andrew Jackson, 8 years, 3 months, 4 days.
Benjamin Harrison, 8 years, 9 days.
James Buchanan, 7 years, 2 months, 28 days.
Andrew Johnson, 6 years, 4 months, 27 days.
James Monroe, 6 years, 4 months.
Woodrow Wilson, 2 years, 10 months, 20 days.
George Washington, 2 years, 7 months, 10 days.
Chester A. Arthur., 1 year, 3 months 4 days.
James K. Polk, 3 months 11 days.

William Howard Taft, chief justice of the supreme court of the United States, is the only living ex-president.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold no matter of how long standing is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

MISS MARY HOAGLAND DIES AT AGE OF 91

Lived in Decatur for Last 65 Years.

Miss Mary E. Hoagland, one of Decatur's oldest citizens, died at 1:15 o'clock Monday morning at St. Mary's hospital. She was ninety-one years old last December. About two and a half years ago she fell and broke her hip and she had been in the hospital ever since.

Miss Hoagland was familiarly known as Aunt Molly. She had lived in Decatur for the last sixty-five years and was known to many of the older generation. She was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic church.

BORN IN 1832

Miss Hoagland was born in Morgan county, Ill., Dec. [illegible] 1832. She came to Decatur in 1858 and ever since then up to the time of her accident she made her home with her sister, Mrs. Albert Cordell, 715 East Whitmer street. During most of her life she was active in missionary work. She possessed all her faculties to the last in spite of her advanced age. Much of Illinois was an unbroken prairie when she was a girl and she used to tell many interesting [illegible] of pioneer days. The body was removed to the Moran & Sons undertaking establishment and prepared for burial and later taken to the home of Mrs. Cordell, 715 East Whitmer street.

The funeral will be held [illegible] Wednesday morning at St. Patrick's church. The burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

[illegible] VIRGINIA WISEMAN

Miss Virginia Wiseman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Orvill Wiseman, died at 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning at the family residence, 1 10 East Locust street. She was five years old last November. Her death was caused by leakage of the heart after an illness of one year.

The little girl was born Nov. [illegible] Besides her parents she is survived by two sisters, Dorothy Ellen and Geraldine, and her brother, William Orville Wiseman Jr., all of Decatur.

The funeral will be held [illegible] Tuesday afternoon at the residence. The burial will be in [illegible]

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Physician's Discovery Safely Reduces It to Normal and Dizzy Spells Disappear

Thousands who have dizzy spells, sleeplessness, nervousness, shortness of breath, pains in the head and impaired energy have been told by physicians or insurance examiners that they have high blood pressure. The serious results are well enough known to check it at once. High blood pressure caused by overtaxing the heart often brings on Bright's Disease, apoplexy and sudden death.

Norma reduces high blood pressure to normal. Often one bottle will do it. Many have so testified. It is a doctor's prescription that's harmless and is also much used by women at the changing time of life who usually have blood pressure above normal. Ask for Norma at Decatur Drug Co. or any other good druggist.

PLANNED MONKEY FARM NEAR BRYAN

Great Commoner Has Narrow Escape.

BY ROBERT T. SMALL.

(Copyright 1924)

Miami, Fla., Feb. 4—William Jennings Bryan, high priest of fundamentalism and arch enemy of the theory of evolution, has had a narrow escape.

A northern scientist has been in Miami recently intent upon establishing here a monkey farm for further scientific research designed to substantiate and bulwark the Darwinian idea. He was attracted here by what he thought to be satisfactory climatic conditions for the Simians, and it did not occur to him until after his arrival that he was proposing to bring his studies to the very threshold of the man who proclaims that evolution has become a national issue and it is time for good men to align themselves either on the side of the Bible or on the side of the monkey.

Mr. Bryan says he would never consciously make a monkey out of himself or anybody.

CHOOSE HAVANA

The proximity of the Bryan home was not the deterring factor but the scientist has decided to locate his simian studio in Havana rather than Miami. This change of plan was due solely to the discovery in Havana of a private collection of more than ninety particularly fine and intelligent monkeys upon whom the new psychological tests are to be made.

The goal of the experiment is an ambitious one. The backers of the research investigations believe that certain monkeys can be made to talk and they further believe that once this form of expression is open to the simians something akin to human thought or volition may come from their beastly brains. There are some particularly fine apes in the Havana collection and these will be selected for the talking tests.

IDENTIFY GUNMAN WHO HALTED DANCE

Chicago, Feb. 4—Anthony Kissane, one time gunman, jockey and beer runner, was identified yesterday by twenty persons as leader of a gang which shot up the Lake Drive Inn dance early in the day, breaking up the orchestra [illegible] with a rattle of sawed off shotguns and automatic which signaled Chicago's latest labor killing.

After scores of detectives personally led by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe and Chief of Police Morgan Collins had arrested more than 100 persons—the biggest roundup in the city's history—it was announced that Kissane's case would be taken before the grand jury today. True bills are expected by noon—less than forty eight hours after the shooting in which one person was killed and a dozen wounded.

25,000 VOLTS CUTS MAN'S BODY APART

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 4—Aaron Trone, one of the oldest employes of the Mobile Electric company power house, was electrocuted here Sunday while at work on a high tension wire. His body was almost burned in two by [illegible] 000 volts of electricity. All power throughout the county was shut down while linemen removed the body.

USE BLOODHOUNDS IN PEKIN CASE

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 4—Trouble is feared in Canton, Ill., tonight following an attack on Miss Grace Slack, forty years old, in her home late last night. This is the second attack on women in two months. Bloodhounds have been taken to the city from Decatur.

MACDONALD AND POINCARE FRIENDLY

London, Feb. 4—In recent correspondence Ramsay Macdonald, British premier, told M. Poincare, French premier, "we can be frank without being hostile and can defend our countries' interest without being at enmity" and the Frenchman replied he would "do my utmost to solve them (questions of importance) by friendly agreement and to our mutual advantage."

HOWARD CARTER HAS TUT'S STONE COFFIN

Great Chest Is Remarkable Specimen.

Luxor, Egypt, Feb. 4—(AP)—For the first time in 3,200 years the great stone coffin of Tutankhamen stood forth today in all its majestic splendor.

The fourth chest proved to Howard Carter's hands a less formidable problem than was first surmised.

As massive in construction as it is chastely simple in design this grandiose stone chest, gleaming pink, must be acclaimed a unique specimen of the funerary art of the eighteenth dynasty.

FOUR GODDESSES

The four goddesses of death who stand at the four corners of the coffin with wings outspread are boldly and deeply incised—full breasted with slender arms and powerfully winged, each with one hand grasping the key of life. The lid is massively solid and inscribed in bands with lines of hieroglyphics.

Members of the party are looking forward to the time when the lid shall be raised and the mummy exposed.

BLAME WAR ON RIVAL GENERALS

Defeated At Polls, Employ Arms.

San Salvador, Republic of San Salvador, Feb. 4—(AP)—Advices from Honduras report that Gen. Carias, one of the three unsuccessful aspirants for the presidency of Honduras, has proclaimed a new government at Lipas. It is reported also that Gen. Ciceron Ferrera, an adherent of Policarpo Bonilla, another presidential candidate, has taken up arms at La Esperanza City.

The Honduras congress has been dissolved and President Gutierrez having assumed the power of government probably will form a new cabinet composed of neutral elements.

(Press advices from Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, Friday, said that failure of congress to elect a president and the expiration at midnight Thursday of the four year term of President Gutierrez had produced a situation in which civil warfare was threatened.)

HALT SHOWING OF BIRTH OF NATION

Chicago, Feb. 4—More than 4,000 persons were turned out of a theater here Sunday night when a squad of policemen halted presentation of the revived "The Birth of a Nation" and arrested the picture machine operators on warrants charging violation of a state law forbidding exhibition of motion pictures engendering race hatred.

LATVIA PUTS BIG TAX ON LIQUORS

Riga, Feb. 4—(AP)—Latvia has had trouble with the excessive thirst of certain foreign legations in Riga.

The government was unable to understand why carload lots of wines and other liquors should be imported by legations whose membership was so small that it was impossible to believe the members required so much wine for their own use. The matter was quietly disposed of by requiring the diplomats to pay duty on this wine, a measure that increases the cost about three fold.

GRAYSON, BARUCH CLOSE TO WILSON

Admiral Also Attended Roosevelt and Taft.

Washington, Feb. 4—(AP)—Many friends and confidents came into Woodrow Wilson's life after he entered the White House. Many also passed out. Of all those who came two notably remained.

One was his physician, Rear-Admiral Cary T. Grayson; the other was Bernard M. Baruch, the New York financier. Of the two Mr. Wilson's relationship with Dr. Grayson was the more personal, the bond between them was almost as that between father and son.

Grayson, the confident and physician of two presidents, before brought to his chief touches of nature which many declared were not part of Mr. Wilson's natural equipment.

AN ORPHAN BOY

Dr. Grayson was the son of a Virginia county doctor, orphaned early in life, who took his hard knocks while getting an education. Long before Wilson was heard of as a presidential possibility Dr. Grayson was a naval officer attached to the White House as a physician to President Roosevelt. Because he knew something about human nature, birds, trees and animals, particularly horses, he was not long in becoming Col. Roosevelt's aid and companion.

President Roosevelt turned him over to President Taft and he won Mr. Taft's heart with his sympathetic devotion to her delicate health.

ANSWERED CALL

Woodrow Wilson had never heard of Dr. Grayson when he stepped into the White House. Several physicians of the army and navy, including Grayson, were attached to the White House inauguration day, 1913, but all but Grayson away. The first Mrs. Wilson, as she entered the White House, met with a painful accident; here was a call for a doctor, answered by Grayson.

Mrs. Wilson commended to her husband this modest young man who seemed so devoted to his duty. He became Mr. Wilson's aide and [illegible] and his friend. After [illegible] her death the first Mrs. Wilson told Grayson to "take good care of Woodrow [illegible]."

How well that promise was kept probably only a recording angel may know.

MRS EDITH GALT

Sometime after Mrs. Wilson's death Dr. Grayson introduced to guests at the White House, a friend of long acquaintance, Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt. She later became Mrs. Wilson.

Some time after that President Wilson, on recommendation of Secretary Daniels, nominated Dr. Grayson for promotion to the grade of rear admiral.

Probably no one will ever know what the complexities and difficulties of his position as physician, friend and confident of Woodrow Wilson really were. One thing is certain, he devoted seven years of his life to keeping Woodrow Wilson a well man and four more to keeping him alive.

BLAME CAR CREW FOR DEATH OF 12

Anderson, Ind., Feb. 4—Coroner Jesse Helbert began an investigation Sunday into the wreck of two Indiana Union Traction trains near the village of Alphonte Saturday when took a toll of twelve dead and 45 injured. The interstate commerce commission also is conducting an investigation of the accident.

Arthur W. Brady, president of the Union Traction company, in a statement issued Sunday regarding the wreck said the crew of the eastbound train apparently ran past the point where it usually meets the other train near Fortville. He asserted, however, a more detailed investigation will be made before final responsibility for the accident is determined.

The charred bodies of victims who were burned in to an almost unrecognizable state when the wreckage caught fire are at the morgue here.

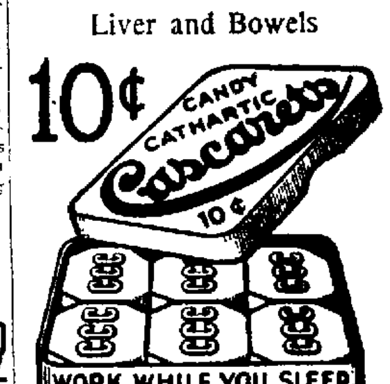

The two interurban trains, taxed with week-end passengers, crashed head on as they went around a sharp curve near Alphonte.

MEXICAN INDIANS CROSS U. S. LINE

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 4—Approximately 3 0 Yaqui Indians passed through here today and were transferred to Juarez, from where they will be shipped south to aid Obregon armies in the fight against the de la Huerta rebels. The men entrained at Naco, Ariz.

Cod Liver Oil Now In Tasteless Tablets

Greatest Flesh Builder

No more will weak, thin unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy tasting, horrible smelling cod liver oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's real genuine cod liver oil in sugar coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run down and skinny grown ups who ought to take cod liver oil because it really is the greatest vitamine food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver oil in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easy as a bottle of magnesia.

Thin, run down, anaemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, and if you don't gain 5 pounds in 30 days just get your money back.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks according to her own doctor—another ten pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child aged nine, twelve pounds in seven months and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, Decatur Drug Co., J. W. Armstrong, J. A. West and Quaker Drug Co. or any good druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only sixty cents for 60 tablets.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 4—Four years ago when the present form of organization of the Illinois Intercollegiate athletic conference was adopted, Knox delegates endeavored to bar smaller colleges of the state from sharing in the advantages of the congerence. The small colleges haven't forgotten and now Knox may feel the wallop of its own boomerang.

Knox's attitude on the freshman ruling, its insistence that other colleges of the Little 10 group live up to the standards set by the Mid-West conference which Knox is also a member of, and its policy of cancelling contracts with Little Nineteen colleges if they refuse to bow to the dictates of Old Siwash, has aroused the righteous ire of the major portion of I. I. A. C. members who have no interest whatever in the rules of the Mid-West.

From a reliable source it is learned that several members of the advantages of the conference, to write President William Harmon of the I. I. A. C., asking him to call a special session of the conference to consider the strange conduct of Knox.

PASS-OUT CHECKS SUGGESTED.

Moreover, it is definitely known that several other members of the conference are in favor of tieing the skids to Knox and other members of the Mid-West conference who insist on disrupting the policy and the organization of the Little Nineteen. "If they want to observe Mid-West rules in preference to those of the Little Nineteen let them get out of the I. I. A. C.," one prominent coach—not a Bradley official—declared bluntly several days ago.

Knox' opponents protest that the Galesburg school has given evidence in its recent actions of attempting to scatter the seeds of disloyalty in the Little Nineteen. The Little Nineteen definitely went on record as opposing the freshman ruling in its recent meeting and still Knox, a member of the same conference, seeks to foster on its fellow members the very same ruling the conference would not consider at its conclave, they assert.

TOO MANY MASTERS.

Knox, in belonging to two conferences, is trying to serve two masters, and the "small fry," who have no aspirations to mingle with company it cannot feel at home among, contend that it is impossible for Knox to observe both the rules of the Mid-West and Little Nineteen without causing ruptures. Knox, it is the general impression among Illinois minor college followers, is stepping out of its class in attempting to mix with Coe, Cornell and Carleton of the Mid-West.

Furthermore, it is contended that Knox, as well as the other two Little Nineteen colleges who are also members of the Mid-West, Monmouth and Millikin, exist on a successful basis only because they have been affiliated with Illinois minor colleges. Millikin, especially, cannot afford to compete alone with Mid-West members because of the heavy expense involved in traveling such long distances for contests.

USE BOYCOTT?

Some have even gone to the length of suggesting that the refractory members of the I. I. A. C. be thrown out of the organization and a boycott instituted against them. This would mean that Little Nineteen colleges would have no athletic relations with Mid-West conference schools. While it is hardly probable such drastic steps would be taken it is a possibility, at least.

Knox, leader of the movement to inaugurate the freshman rule in Illinois, has stirred the wrath of its brethren in the state. Too late, it may discover that its presence in the state grouping is not so imperative after all.

just why he is world's champion after Schaefer had run a 140 lead in his first turn at the table in the evening game; coming back to win the match 300 to 250.

With the 15th annual McLean county tournament, the largest county tournament in the country, opening Thursday over 600 season tickets have been sold to date. Bloomington will be the capital of the world, the last of the week, as far as McLean county fans are concerned.

The Illinois Wesleyan quintet has had one of the most successful weeks in the history of the sport at that school. Last Tuesday Millikin was defeated 25 to 21, a week's work any time but the Methodists then walloped McKendree 38 to 18 the next night while Friday Lake Forest fell 41 to 18 and Saturday night Northwestern took a 45 to 10 walloping.

J. Franklin Murphy, the young man who caused so much trouble on the Bloomington ball club last year has been secured by President Brookwalter of Danville, from Nashville for the coming season. Franklin is a great ball player and will do the Vets a lot of good—if he can control that temper.

Here is one many of the coaches will be pleased to read.

Memphis, Tenn.—Declarations that athletic coaches receive higher salaries than college professors, was not borne out when a poll of delegates attending the convention here of the Educational Association of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, taken recently showed that none of the institutions represented paid their coaches from their budgets more than was paid to instructors. It was then pointed out, however, that demand from the public and the alumni for winning teams often resulted in contributions from outside sources to increase the renumeration of athletic coaches.

It was agreed that athletics had a big place in the program of educational institutions.

Central High lost its fourth game in 21 starts at Champaign Saturday night and Olson of the University High team scored nine field goals. The final score was 22 to 12.

The students are happy at Peoria Manual Training High school. After losing nine straight games the orange and black team defeated Spalding Institute in an inter-city game by a one point margin Friday night.

Leslie Mann basketball coach at Indiana U and for a number of years a Major League star is being sought as head football coach by the Oregon Aggie officials.

Mann, a former Springfield Y. M. C. A. training school product, is claimed by many to be the nearest approach to Jim Thorpe of any athlete in the country.

The Indiana coach is a great friend of Bill Duerr, both having been pals across the pond during the world war.

Every one in Decatur likes to see the Staley Co. progress for it means a better and greater Decatur. However, Bait will wager a ticket to the Sepp-Anderson match against an old shoe that the 1924 Commies finish the season at Staley Field.

Next year. Well, that is a different matter. We think it was about a year or two ago that The Review pointed out the coming need for a municipal athletic field in Decatur which could not only take care of league basbball but Decatur high school athletics as well. It has come and the only way for such an undertaking to be put over is via the ballot box.

League baseball, fortunate when it breaks even in a city the size of Decatur, is not able to build a park and the same is true of the D. H. S. athletic association.

Muncipal Field. Peoria has one, Evansville has one, Terre Haute will have one next year. Would hate to think that any of the above named cities could put over something that Decatur can't equal.

CANADIANS TAKE HOCKEY HONORS

Trim Yanks 6 to 1—Norway Has Big Lead.

Chamonix, France, Feb. 3—(AP)—Canada won the blue ribbon event of the 1924 Olympic winter games by defeating the United States Sunday, 6 to 1, in the final of the hockey series. It was a fast and furious contest from start to finish. Ten Olympic points are thus added to Canada's total.

The American team went down with flying colors when the referee, Paul Loicq of Belgium, blew his whistle at the end, and the sixtieth minute was the roughest hockey strule ever fought out in Europe. The Americans were stumbling from fatigue.

ANNOUNCE WILSON'S DEATH.

The death of former President Wilson was announced through the huge amplifiers immediately after the match. Although it had been expected by the hundreds of Americans assembled here, the news came as a shock to the thousands of spectators in general. Immediately all heads were bared and there was a silence of one minute, while the American flag, second from the top on the Olympic pole, was half-staffed.

Norway, with 91½ points, has what is regarded as a safe lead at the head of the seventeen nations engaged in the sports, Finland being the other contender with any possible chance of over-taking her.

Only fifty more points remain to be divided. There are two ski events for Monday, and Norway is the favorite.

STANDINGS.

The standing at the end of the tenth day is:

Norway 91½ points.
Finland 76½ points.
Great Britain 30 points.
United States 26 points.
Austria 25 points.
Switzerland 24 points.
Sweden 22 points.
France 19½ points.
Canada 11 points.
Czecho-Slovakia 7½ points.
Belgium 6 points.
Italy 1 point.

BAIT FOR BUGS

By H. V. Millard

The next basketball attraction for local fans is to be staged Tuesday evening in the Millikin gym when the Blue and White tossers meet Eureka College. When the McKenzie tribe trots on the floor they will show the most highly colored suits ever worn by an I. I. A. C. team.

Carter Walden of Clinton, who was brought to Decatur by Dan O'Leary for a trial at the short stop berth in 1922 after being recommended by Frank Donnelly, former Springfield and Peoria manager, is to get another whirl at class B ball. Pat Harkins has signed the Clinton boy for the Bloomers.

Gale Warner, captain-elect of the Bradley track team, who can run the two miles around two minutes, has withdrawn from the Peoria school and has entered Illinois U. That will be a big blow to coach Leo Johnson.

Despite all the publicity given the Hoppe-Schaefer exhibition at the St. Nicholas parlors Saturday the local fans did not take advantage of the show and Manager Bodkin not only lost most of his afternoon and evening receipts by staging the match but about $100 in addition. However, he is good enough sport to consider the loss worth the effort for those who did witness the exhibitions.

Hoppe and Schaefer will not play in a city the size of Decatur during their tour. The pair jumped from Cincinnati here and then made a dash for Cleveland after the local exhibition. From Cleveland they go to Pittsburgh. Hoppe's manager was surprised that Bodkin only charged a dollar, saying that they were charging $1.75 for standing room at most of the places and that they were drawing down about $1,000 a day as their share.

Hoppe showed the Decatur fans just why he is world's champion.

SEPP-ANDERSON READY FOR MAT

Two Distinct Types Will Clash in Main Go.

A tall swede and a short Esthonian will tangle arms and legs this evening in the Regimental Headquarters Co. mat show when August Sepp of Decatur faces Gus Anderson of Rockford.

While Anderson doesn't claim to be a middleweight owing to the fact he cannot get down to the 158 pound mark he will have only a few pounds on Sepp who will step into the ring around 162 pounds. The Rockford wrestler has been in Decatur since Friday evening and in his several workouts here has impressed the few who have seen him go through his paces.

MUCH FOR SEPP.

Sepp has closed with Jack Skeleton the Oskaloosa, Ia., promoter for the Parcaut match to be staged in the Hawkeye town, Feb. 12 and is more than anxious to pin Anderson to the mat before meeting one of the leading claimants to the middleweight title. In fact August thinks so much of his chances in the winner take all match at Oskaloosa that he is leaving Decatur Tuesday for Chicago where he will train with some of the Windy City mat men in preparation for the Parcaut bout.

ROCHE VS. HODNICK.

Dorve Roche, the Decatur middle weight and Johnny Hodnick, the Virginia, Minn., grappler are ready for their time limit or one fall match which will be the semi-windup tonight.

Roche is coming to the front fast and if he can slip over a win on the more experienced Hodnick it will be quite a boost for the local boy.

Cecil Depew, the Ramsey boy, and Lewis Robb, another local mat comer, will start the ball rolling in the first match of the evening, the grapplers being called to the mat at 8 o'clock.

Billy Smith, an old time mat star but now located here, will be the third man in the ring for tonight's bouts. With the possibilities of arranging a Sepp-Prehn match here the Regimental Headquarters Co. is hoping for the biggest turnout of the season tonight.

WESLEYAN TOSSERS IN FOURTH TRIUMPH

Defeat Northwestern College, 45 to 10 on Northern Trip.

Naperville, Feb. 4—Featured by the superlative work of Johnny Zinser and Ross Anderson, Illinois Wesleyan's basketeers chalked up their fourth win in five days here Saturday night, when they turned Hap Collins' Northwestern college five back 45 to 10. Zinser had one of the biggest nights of his career, sinking eight field goals and two from the free line for a total of 18 points, almost as many as the whole Northwestern team together compiled.

Ross Anderson besides playing a grand defensive game sank six beautiful baskets and shared the honors of the evening with the colorful football captain.

NO FIELD GOALS FOR ALTON CAGE QUINTET

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 4—Coming back with a lot of dash after their setback at the hands of Peoria Central Friday night, the Purple and Gold clad basketball team representing Bloomington high gave Alton high a real walloping at the high school gymnasium Saturday night, running up a score of 41 to 6 on MacWhertter's basketballers.

It was not the same team that floundered around the floor Friday night, not a single basket being scored by the invaders, while the B. H. S. offense chalked up 17 field goals and 7 foul tosses.

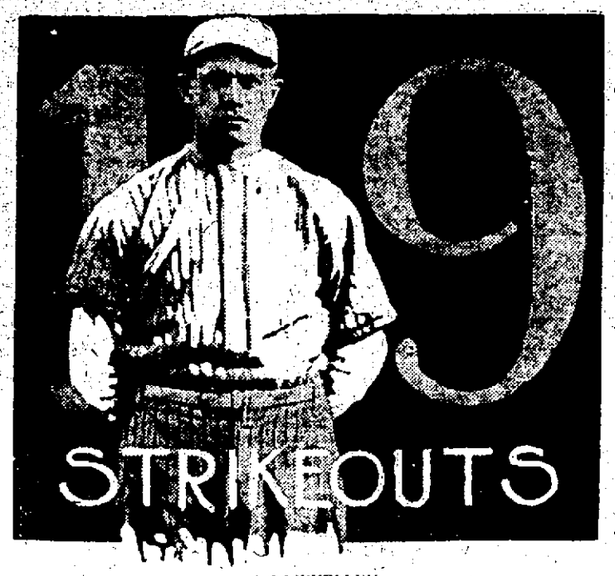

Everett Baldwin, slender forward of the Bloomers and Harold Costigan who has been playing a fine game at center for Schimmel were high gunners. Baldwin got six baskets and Costigan 5.

STRIKEOUT COLLEGE KING JOINS PITTSBURGH SQUAD

VERN LEWELLEN.

A young gent who will receive more than passing attention in the camp of the Pittsburgh Nationals this spring is Vern Lewellen, college pitcher, who recently decided upon a professional career. Lewellen is a product of the University of Nebraska, and is listed as a genuine comer. In collegiate circles he was a sensation. Against Missouri in a game for the valley championship he fanned 19 batters. It was on the strength of this performance that Pittsburgh signed him.

LINCOLN TOSSERS LOSE TO CARTHAGE

Lincoln, Feb. 4—Carthage college took a hard fought game from the Lincoln college basketball tossers here Saturday night by the score of 22 to 15. Lincoln held the lead most of the way in the first period but Cmar's men came through in the closing minutes and lead at half time 15 to 8. Stull with his wicked basket shooting fixed Lincoln the last half.

Carthage played only mediocre ball with the light weight purple quintet rushing the heavy boys until they had to stall at times to keep going. Stull was the high point man for the visitors, caging six field goals. Layman played best basketball for Lincoln and sunk four ringers.

TERRIBLE SWEDES SLAP ARMOUR TECH

Rock Island, Ill., Feb. 4.—After leading, 17 to 7, at the half, the Augustana college quintet ran roughshot over the Armour Tech five of Chicago Saturday night and piled up a 50-19 score. Conrey collected nine field goals and Aronson seven. The Norsemen, who will meet Lombard next Saturday for the Little Nineteen conference title, never were hindered much in their driving attacks, which consisted entirely of short passing.

MODIFIED DRAFT TO SAVE FRISCO

San Francisco Aided By One Restriction.

BY JOHN B. FOSTER.
(Copyright, 1924)

New York, Feb. 4— Probably the only thing that will hold the San Francisco club together in 1925—if the owners wish to retain its personnel—is the fact that the modified draft does not permit players who have been developed by a minor organization to be selected by lot by the major clubs. And now some of the majors are working to annul that provision and make the draft wide open.

There are three players on the San Francisco team who would be lost in a twinkling if the draft rules did not hold them for the Coast champions. They are Wamer, Rhyne and Valla. All three, however, as it is understood in the East, are strictly San Francisco property. Petey Kilduff is not, and it isn't a bit sure that San Francisco will keep him another year, as he is a better second baseman right now than four that can be named in the big leagues.

OTHERS PROTESTED.

When the San Francisco team won the championship last year, some of the coast owners who did not win, moped around and said they might have had a chance had they been allowed to borrow players from the big leagues—a pretty sorry way of saying that baseball is not a game but a show.

HOOSIER-GOPHER PLAYERS IN LEAD

For Scoring Honors in Big Ten Cage Race.

Although Indiana and Minnesota are not counted on as possible title contenders in the Big Ten race by most of the critics the Hoosiers and Gophers maintain five of the first six places in the scoring column.

Mike Nykos one of the outstanding forwards in the conference leads in field goals, having twenty-eight to his credit but is topped by Cunningham of Ohio for first place by virtue of twelve more free throws. Logan is the other Hoosier star near the top while Racey, Ecklund and Pesek are the Gopher's star scorers.

SIX VALLEY CITIES HAVE NAMED PILOTS

Waterloo, Ia., Feb. 4.—Six of the eight clubs in the Mississippi Valley league have signed managers for the coming season, only two of last season's leaders having been retained. The managers signed are:

Dubuque, Johnny Armstrong; Cedar Rapids, William Speas; Ottumwa, "Chick" Mattick; Rock Island, Preston Gray; Moline, James Schollenberger; Marshalltown, Jack Lacy.

Waterloo and Burlington have not signed pilots, but it is expected both cities will sign their leaders within a few days.

The M. V. league season will open on May 1 and close Sept. 1, playing 126 games.

Wednesday—Washington and Kansas at Lawrence. Drake and Missouri at Columbia.

Thursday— Kansas Aggies and Ames at Ames.

Friday—Nebraska and Missouri at Columbia. Kansas Aggies and Grinnell at Grinnell.

Saturday—Kansas and Oklahoma at Norman. Kansas Aggies and Drake at Des Moines. Nebraska and Washington at St. Louis.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 4—(AP)—Washington and Kansas, leaders in the race for the Missouri Valley conference basketball title, closed another week without defeat and will contest for supremacy Wednesday in their first clash of the season.

Both teams downed Missouri last week, but by scores that were not at all comfortable. Kansas won over the Tigers 16 to 14, and Washington by 27 to 26.

FOOLISH SCHEDULE.

The Jayhawkers, besides meeting their chief conference rivals on Wednesday, are matched for an important nonconference game the night before. They will test their strength with the Kansas City A. C. five, 1923 A. A. U. champions, at Convention hall in Kansas City Tuesday night.

Oklahoma swept victoriously through the Iowa sector of the valley last week, walloping Ames Thursday night, 32 to 17; Drake on Friday, 37 to 27, and Saturday night tumbling Grinnell 43 to 31.

Missouri met three reverses during the week, losing to the Kansas Aggies, 29 to 26, in addition to Washington and Kansas. The Valley conference standings:

CHARLESTON TOSSERS TRIM STATE NORMAL

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 4—With Hall, stellar forward sinking baskets from every part of the court, the Eastern Illinois Normal Teachers had little difficulty beating the State Teachers at Normal Saturday night, 38 to 16. The Horton crew could not stop the tiny forward from Charleston and the result was a runaway.

It was by far the poorest showing the Teachers have made all season.

Coach Horton kept shooting in reserves but none of them could stem the tide.

BENNY LACKS LOGICAL FOE

Johnny Dundee—Pal Moran Bout Fail to Be Conclusive.

BY FAIR PLAY.
(Copyright 1924.)

New York, Feb. 4—Benny Leonard will probably not have to cancel any theatrical contracts hurriedly in order to prepare to defend his lightweight title. At least, not as a result of the Johnny Dundee-Pal Moran battle last Friday night. The result of that clash was somewhat of a disappointment, although the milling itself was of the fiercest and most spectacular variety, for it did not provide Benny with a logical opponent.

Had Moran flattened Dundee or even outpointed the veteran holder of the featherweight title decisively, the fans would have clamored to see him exchange wallops with the light weight king. Moran was not equal to the task, however.

HELD HIS OWN.

Dundee also was unable to do much more than hold his own with the New Orleans boxer. In fact it required all the ring generalship he had acquired in long years of fighting to enable him to withstand the last rally Pal made.

Also Dundee has fought Leonard before and he exhibited nothing either in those former frays or Friday night which would indicate an ability to beat the champion or even to make the latter extend himself fully.

WAS HOT AFFAIR.

Nevertheless, Dundee and Moran put up a scintillating battle, Moran was on the aggressive much of the time but, while he obviously had the heavier artillery of the two, he was outpaced and out-guessed in the majority of the rounds. Johnny obviously was in splendid condition or he never could have weathered the storm of blows that Pal sent to his ribs and body in the closing sessions.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Ohio State Counts On Former Marine

"TEE" YOUNG.

Columbus, O.—In the family Bible, he's plain "Frank Dewey Young."

To Ohio State students, he's just "Tee" Young.

In the "Who's Who" of high school and intercollegiate athletics, however, he can show you a string of achievements and a flock of titles that will make your eyes bulge. But you'll never get him to do it. "Tee" is too modest. He'll talk about anything but himself.

Somewhere in the records of the U. S. Marines, if you search long enough, you'll find further trace of this same Frank D. Young. With a little more diligence you'll discover that he served 17 long months with the "Gyrenes" in San Domingo and that he took part in several engagements there.

That, in brief, tells most of the life story of Young who, as captain-elect of the Ohio State University football team, is looked upon as the Moses to lead the Buckeyes out of the wilderness where they have been wandering for two long years.

"Tee" is a product of the famous Waite High teams of Toledo. As a high school athlete he won eight letters in four sports, the most, with one exception, accumplated by a Toledo high school athlete up to 1920. Young won four letters in football at Waite High and was captain of the team in his senior year. He roamed in the outfield on the baseball nine, tossed the weights in track and held down a guard job in basketball.

When he came to Ohio State as a freshman in the fall of 1919 he was adjudged the most physically perfect freshman in a class that numbered perhaps 1500. In the ensuing years "Tee" has lost none of his Adonis-like attributes.

"TEE" YOUNG.

In the interim, he has served at tackle and center on the varsity eleven, finally landing as a regular at the latter berth. He did not play in 1922 and consequently is available for the 1924 season.

Young, as a sophomore, also won his letter in basketball as a guard in 1921-22.

"Tee" is one of the most popular students here in a number of years. He is a junior in the engineering college and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

To complete the record, it should be added that he is 24 years of age, weighs 180 pounds and is 6 feet in height.

Umpire Hildebrand's

Is Fined By Brother Umpire.

Unique Experience

BY BILLY EVANS.

In the minors when a player offends, it is the duty of the umpire to levy a fine. Such a thing is a rather common occurrence in the bushes as the players do not always agree with the umpires. In this connection, George Hildebrand of the American league staff of umpires believes he holds the distinction, if it can be so classed, of being the only umpire ever fined by a brother official. Here is the way Hildebrand tells it:

"When I was working in the Pacific Coast league, prior to coming to the American, I was doubled up with Umpire Finney in a series at Los Angeles. Finney was working the plate. He had an unusually close decision to give that went against the home team and the Los Angeles club crowded around him to protest.

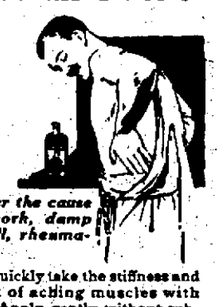

"The kick was a particularly strenuous one and the game was being unnecessarily delayed. Believing that I might help Finney out of his trouble, I walked to the plate, and in a rather rough voice shouted:

"Come on, Finney, get the game started, this thing is beginning to look like a farce." Finney had been threatening to fine the players, it seems, and when I came through with my rather sarcastic comment, he was all set, and in a decidedly peeved voice replied.

"That will just cost you ten." Of course Finney had no idea he was fining me. The incident got a big laugh from the athletes, who immediately resumed play. An umpire being fined by his partner broke up the indignation meeting.

"I don't think it is necessary to add that Finney remitted the fine in the dressing room after the game."

Oil Industry Encouraged By Repeated Price Gains

Real Advance Due However to Absence of Any Real Boom; Output Has Steady Advance.

BY J. C. ROYLE
(Copyright 1924.)

New York Feb 4—Repeated increases in the prices of crude oil and gasoline continue to be reported at frequent intervals from various sections of the country. These announcements have had an encouraging effect on the oil industry, the oil regions and those industries and businesses most closely allied with petroleum and its product.

Nevertheless the real betterment in the oil industry has been produced not by an oil boom but by the fact that there is no oil boom existing at present and none is in immediate prospect.

SITTING PRETTY

Consequently oil holders are beginning to feel that they are sitting pretty and will continue to ... until another boom sends them scurrying again for tank age facilities. There are 25 per cent more gasoline driven vehicles in operation today than a year ago and more are being turned out at a tremendous rate. This increase is counted on quickly to eat up surplus gas.

Word has gone out to contract holders on the Pacific coast that California fuel oil will be advanced from $1.32 to $1.50 a barrel to contract holders within 90 days. This price covers delivery. Contracts held by industrial concerns with the five large California producing companies in most instances are subject to cancellation after ninety days notice. Some such contracts already have been cancelled in the Pacific northwest with the statement that no new contracts would be entered into for the time being.

Customer Cooperation

TELEPHONE service consists essentially in providing the facilities for communication.

Reduced to fundamentals, it may be stated thus:—

A is provided with a telephone.

B is provided with a telephone.

C, through wires and mechanism, connects these two telephones.

Satisfaction with the service depends largely on A and B.

From the very beginning their cooperation is imperative. A must call B and B must answer. Doing these things in the way which makes for good service involves:—

1—Such care in asking for the number as one would use in addressing a letter.

2—Such promptness in answering the call as one would give to keeping a personal appointment.

3—Such courtesy as one would show in making or receiving a business or social call.

4—Such clear, correct speech as one would use in the face-to-face transaction of the most important business.

Each subscriber can increase the effectiveness of his telephone communication by such thoughtfulness as he would employ in his daily life.

JOURNAL OF COMMERCE

Chicago Feb 4—Journal of Commerce says 'Sentiment in grains favor higher prices A delegation of northwestern and Chicago sympathizers left Chicago last night for Washington where matter of buying a large quantity of wheat in this country for shipment to Germany for starving women and children is to be agitated again If present rate of consumption is continued it is pointed out by some authorities the carryover July 1st will be far from burdensome Besides there is every prospect of a materially reduced yield in the U S this year The trend in corn values is regarded as dependent on the volume of country selling

COMING EVENTS

Chicago Feb 4—Coming Events says 'During the present week further gains should be scored by the sound issues of the rail, steel and equipment groups Before the end of the week we anticipate the start of a new upward movement for the leading oil stocks and the majority of the motor group All signs indicate gradually increasing demand for securities which should result in actively higher market with the advent of spring '

FARMERS' INSTITUTE TO OPEN TUESDAY

Expect Large Exhibit in All Departments.

Macon county's Farmers Institute will open Tuesday in the Farm Bureau building with a large exhibit of farm products and household science materials Speakers on agricultural and household subjects that are all experts in their line have been secured for the four days of instruction in the most up-to-date methods and the entire institute will be highly educational and interesting to both men and women of the community

The exhibits were already coming in Monday morning but the larger bulk of the household and grain displays are expected Monday evening and Tuesday morning Preparations are being made for an unusually large display of corn and all of the entrants from last year have re-entered again for the 1924 show

ATTRACTIVE PREMIUMS

The premium list is an attractive one both for the agricultural products and the household science exhibits and keen rivalry is anticipated between these who have entries for the quality of the products this year is unusually high

The four-day program will open Tuesday afternoon The household science division will hold its meetings in the Armory building at Main and Franklin streets while the agricultural section will meet in the Farm Bureau building

In charge of the farm exhibits are Louis Weisendanger, Enoch Phillips and C W Marshall

Rural schools will be dismissed Thursday for the county spelling match to be held in the high school

Tax-payers Line Up at Window

Auditor Sims Busy Going Over Books.

Tax payers were lined up early Monday morning and funds are pouring into the hands of the county treasurer and collector

The balance on hand in the various funds Monday was something over $210,000 This will grow rapidly for the next ninety days

Auditor Sims is still working over the books to verify the report made by County Treasurer B F Coffman on the daily balances in his hands last year

WANT TO MOVE OLD BUCK HOME

Commissioners Protest Against Tree Cutting.

A petition for permission to move the old house on the Buck property at North Water and East Eldorado streets where J T Moran plans to erect a fine funeral home, caused considerable discussion in the city council Monday and the petition was referred to the council as a committee of the whole for investigation

The petitioner asked to move the house to East Condit street and the question of blocking the streets and also of cutting trees—both of which were asked for in the petition—brought out some strong expressions against tree cutting by house movers Commissioners Harry Ruthrauff and A. L. McNabb were particularly emphatic on that subject

RAISE $250 FOR GERMAN CHILDREN

Generous Response at St. Johannes Church.

Splendid response resulted Sunday in St Johannes' Lutheran church, to the plea for money for German relief. The collection brought in more than $230 and this sum was increased to more than $250 when a man who is not a member of the church, sent in a check for $25 for the fund

This fund is taken up for the purpose of giving immediate relief and will be used for food, mainly, according to Rev. William Heyne

ISLAND FANATICS LOSE 1,800 KILLED

Manila, Feb 4—The total losses incurred by the Colorums, religious fanatics, amount to 1,800 to date, according to officers of the steamer Sonya arriving from Surigao, who said the inhabitants are terror stricken and fleeing to other islands, many returning to Manila, while the authorities expect a fresh uprising on Bybol island which is understood to be the stronghold of the sect

Fifty-four bodies of Colorums slain at Surigao were left exposed for three days by the constabulary in order to demonstrate to the other natives that the claims of the Colorums that their adherents will be resurrected within three days are false.

Wilson Has No Heirs In Party

ones who maintained some degrees of personal contact with the stricken leader

Aside from them the rank and file of this first group consisted of some hundreds of thousand perhaps some millions of idealists who continued to have for Wilson and for the League of Nations the same exalted devotion they had while Wilson and at the height of his power and before the League of Nations suffered defeat at the election of 1920 this group of Democrats would willingly have continued to subscribe to the League of Nations would have desired that it be made the party platform again and would joyfully have gone down to defeat after defeat but this first group of the Democratic party even if its membership was as much as two or three millions which is doubtful was at best a hopeless minority

SECOND GROUP

The second group in the Democratic party consisted of progressives who continue to subscribe to Wilson's liberalism and to practically all his ideas with the exception that either they do not subscribe to the League of Nations in its original form on grounds of principles or else on grounds of expediency they regard it is undesirable to cast the die of all the party's fortune on the narrow issue of the league in the exact form in which Wilson made it

They believe international co-operation and an affirmative foreign policy but they stop short of subscribing to the literal League of Nations This second group of Democrats is the main body of the party as it exists today For the most part they have centered about McAdoo because of his progressive and liberal ideas within the field of domestic policies

THE FINAL GROUP

The final group of the Democratic party as it exists today consists of the leaders and followers of the old-time Democratic machine in such states as New York, New Jersey and to some extent Ohio This is the conservative wing of the party It is the wing whose doctrines rest more upon the historic position of the party on the tariff than upon newer progressive and liberal ideas for their intellectual leadership they should subscribe chiefly to Senator Underwood and a few others like him

These three groups compose the Democratic party as it exists today The only change made by Wilson's death will be that the first group the personal adherents of Wilson and the idealists who still believe in the League of Nations in its original form will now tend to merge with the McAdoo liberals For the immediate future it would seem likely that the party would consist of two groups the first consisting of liberals and progressives centering about McAdoo and the second consisting of conservatives centering about the intellectual leadership of Underwood It would be possible to say definitely that this would be the certain alignment of the party from now until the June convention but for the events of the past three days affecting the personal political fortunes of McAdoo

Just how the sensation touching McAdoo's name that arose from the oil investigation last Friday will affect the McAdoo wing of the party as a whole and the question whether they must find a new leader will not be clear until McAdoo has the opportunity he has demanded for making a personal appearance before the committee This will probably happen the latter part of the present week

COX INTO LEAD

It remains to be said that Wilson's death may have an effect of bringing ex Governor Cox to the front again as a party leader For the three years since his defeat in 1920 Cox has had a curious position Practically no one thought of Cox or thinks of him now, as a Wilson man He was not personally sympathetic to Wilson and Wilson was not personally sympathetic to him For his choice as the Democratic nominee in 1920 Cox was indebted to the conservative wing of the party and chiefly to the old guard' leaders

But oddly enough Cox is today the one Democratic national leader who has something approaching Wilson's vision and zeal for international co-operation in the interest of peace and economic stability Cox does not believe in America giving full allegiance to the literal League of Nations or if he does believe in it on principle regards it as impossible to bring about Long ago Cox believed that the best practicable plan is for America to co-operate with the league under modified conditions

At any time during the past three years Cox might have formulated a modified plan for international co-operation and taken his stand on it The thing that restrained him was the obvious danger that Wilson might disapprove, and by his disapproval cause a party schism With Wilson gone it is now possible that Cox may become the principal Democratic spokesman for international co-operation

He believes in it profoundly If international co-operation can be made an issue in the coming election Cox comes nearer than any other to being able to bring it about and likely to bring it about.

EXTREMES CAUSE OF ROAD CRACKS

Skidmore Believes Base Also Cracked.

That the cracks in the West Grand avenue road asphalt pavement probably were caused by the cracking of the concrete base is the opinion of H W Skidmore of the Chicago Paving Laboratories although he says in the letter in which he gave this opinion to Charles Becker township highway commissioner that this could be verified only by a personal inspection

Mr Skidmore says that the concrete base was laid in the heat of the summer with high temperatures prevailing quite often and that it was not protected to cure properly or as long as might have been desirable For this reason he says the extremes of temperature to which it has been subject—from that fiery heat of last summer to the eighteen below zero temperature of this winter—may have caused the base to crack

However he says that when he is within a short distance of Decatur he will come to this city to investigate

Mr Becker says that the cracks are so very small that he believes that they will disappear under traffic conditions in mild or warm weather and he doubts if the base has anything to do with the creation of these slight cracks in the surface

Nobody is venturing out on a dirt road now unless it is absolutely necessary Many of the dirt roads have no bottom at all The melting of the snow followed by the warm weather which brought the frost out of the ground has resulted in mud of the muddiest variety everywhere Motorists who were out Sunday stuck to the paved roads closely

MRS. MILLER FOR G. O. P. DELEGATE

Favors Coolidge for Next President.

Monticello Ill Feb 4—Mrs [illegible] Jamison Miller Republican of Monticello Piatt County has announced her candidacy as a delegate from the State of Illinois at large to the Republican National Convention In a statement to Republicans of Illinois she says she favors the nomination of Calvin Coolidge now president of the United States as the Republican Party's candidate for President

EXPERIENCED

Mrs Miller is President of the Nineteenth Congressional District of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs and has been prominent in the work of the Women's Relief Corps serving in its State and national President at different times She is corresponding secretary of the National Council of Women of the United States

Mrs Miller is experienced in politics She is chairman of the Women's Republican Committee of Piatt County and the regular Republican majorities given Republican candidates in this County through her efforts attest her ability and service to the party She said that she expected to make a state wide campaign in the hopes that she could arouse the women of Illinois to active participation in politics

WESLEY BARRY VISITS DECATUR

Freckle-faced Movie Star Same on Stage as in Film

Maybe the crop of freckles were not so noticeable but in every other respect Wesley Barry juvenile screen star, was much the same on the stage as on the screen when he appeared at the Lincoln Square theater in person Sunday night According to his explanation You'd lose most of your freckles too if you had been appearing in theaters all over these United States for a year'

Wesley is seventeen and as much real boy as the hero of Tarkington's book by that name Out in front of the big audience Sunday night he seemed the same awkward embarrassed kid that he portrays on the screen and somehow one gets the idea that Wesley does not have to do much more than act natural before the camera to get the effects that go straight to the hearts of all who see his pictures

Jumping about from theater to theater sort of cuts in on his time but like other boys Wesley has to study He is the equivalent of a senior in high school but studies English Spanish geometry and history under his tutor-manager Glenn Belt.

'Are You Rolling The Stone Of Sisyphus?'

Sisyphus was supposed by the ancient Greeks to have been condemned to roll a large stone up a steep hill from which it always rolled back before reaching the top—thus making his punishment permanent.

Some of us are rolling the stone of Sisyphus—and naturally are gathering no moss. We glance through the well indexed opportunities in the Review's Classified Section, but we don't ANSWER the ads that interest us. We INTEND to—but we don't get around to do it.

And so the next day we are right back where we started!

We'll never reach the Top of the Hill that way! If we expect to make the grade we've got to seize the opportunities at hand—to act upon them—and let them react to our advantage.

We've got to read Review ads carefully—and answer them quickly!

LIGHTNING HITS WABASH STATION

Nearly Wrecks Interlocker At Lodge, Ill.

WAS FELT IN DECATUR

Loren Bowen Suffers Broken Leg.

The two real loud claps of thunder in quick succession early Monday morning, which awakened those who were still asleep and caused those who were awake to reach for their hat, evidently followed a severe bolt of lightning. It was severe for the Wabash at Last Upset Lodge north of Monticello. It struck the interlocking tower there, ruined the switchboard there, caused wiring to melt and fuse together and temporarily put the interlocking plant out of commission.

At the same time lightning shot out of some of the instruments in the dispatcher's office at Decatur and clicked about the room. Dispatcher Bill Renner was working the north end trick at the time and was not bothered in his head-phone by the bolt outside of a clicking noise. Then his telephone went dead and all of his telegraph wires for a time.

Business Still Good

Freight business on the Decatur division of the Wabash continued good Saturday and Sunday with right at 2,00 loads moved each day. Saturday was also a big day for empties. 1743 being moved that day and 1466 on Sunday. The heaviest movement continues eastbound followed closely by north bound for loads.

Several days ago a more detailed report of this business was printed in column, showing the number of trains moving in each direction. The report stated twenty-two trains trains moved eastward on the Decatur district in the twenty-four hours which caused a 9th district freight engineer to inquire where these twenty-two trains came in as there were but twelve pool crews on the east end and he knew that they had not made a most two round-trips in the day.

An explanation of this news is that the report did not state that twenty-two trains went east on the 9th district. The report mentioned just two districts. Chicago and Decatur districts and of course under Decatur district comes both 9th and 11th districts.

The twenty two trains men oned not only included those going east on the 9th district but also those coming north from Brooklyn to Decatur on the 11th district. This includes locals as well as trains operated by pool crews. In the same way, the total on West bound trains on the Decatur district meant those coming west from Tilton to Decatur and those from Decatur to Brooklyn.

Enginemen to Elect

The triennial meeting and election of officers for the enginemen on the Wabash system is being held in St Louis this week. This convention is not attended by the lay members of the organization but is simply a meeting of the chairmen from each division and this body elects the general officers. Decatur enginemen are taking a special interest this year as it is understood that Harry Cowles Decatur division chairman is to be put up for general chairman to succeed General Chairman Seeley. It is understood Seeley plans to run for reelection.

Another Old Vet

John Knowlton, president of the Wabash Veterans Association organized here last May, continues to dig up occasionally, the name and location of some other veteran. Sunday, he was given the name of J. G. Gronso, better known as Buffalo, an old engineer between Decatur and Chicago. Gronso now farms 100 acres of land near Frederick S. D., and wants to know when and where the next reunion is to be so that he can attend.

Leg Broken

Loren Bowen age 30 years residing at 60 East Decatur and a machinist helper at the Wabash round house, sustained a compound fracture of the leg just below his knee while at work about 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning. He had been working in the pit under an engine and was crawling out just back of the pony trucks in order to let another engine move the dead engine on which he was working. He was not entirely clear when the other engine bumped the one on which he was working pushing it forward until the front driver crushed the leg but did not run over it. The engine that was doing the pushing was one that was almost out of steam and it did not have power enough to pull the dead engine back off the injured man. It required several minutes to get it out of the way and to bring in another live engine to release the victim.

Railroad Notes

Two of the new Wabash freight engines on the Decatur division, Nos. 2265 and 2266 have been assigned to regular service on the highball runs Nos. 93-94 between Decatur and Chicago. They will run through Forrest without changing engines.

Del Coover, who has been on the 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. roundhouse hostling job at the Wabash, has bid in the 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. engine dispatcher job in place of Parks, who was promoted to a foreman job at Springfield.

With the return recently of O. E. Lian and assistant trainmaster for the St. Louis division of the Pennsylvania line in charge of the Decatur district, T. C. Lamb, who was temporarily filling the position, has now been appointed to the office of assistant road foreman of engines, which is really his old position.

What Did You See?

S. W. saw a car stalled in the mud in an alley. The woman in the car read a newspaper while her husband and another man shoveled in the mud and tried to get out of the rut.

A. V. S. saw a bony horse and saggy wagon holding up about fifteen cars on the hard road to Champaign. The horse ambled along and the stream of cars behind could not pass him because of the heavy traffic going the opposite direction.

Decatur

Idling Students Must Go.

Millikin university is weeding out the ne'er do wells in the ranks of its students. That is good news to its friends.

Young men and young women who think that four years in college is that much additional time for father and mother to furnish money for a life of fun only must change their attitude or leave the school.

College life has with it more pleasures than any other equal period in the life of the person who is fortunate enough to have it, but when its primary object becomes simply to be able to say that the student "went to college" it is time for a change.

For in all colleges the student who does not live up to at least a major part of his opportunities is wasting a chance that some one else should have.

Money is being spent on him which should be spent on persons more worthy of it.

The student who thinks because he pays a tuition fee that the obligation is thereby transferred to the college from himself, that he has bought something that the institution is under contract to deliver to him, whether he is willing to receive it or not, is mistaken.

The tuition fee pays only part of the cost of maintaining a college. The balance is made up from endowment or from special gifts.

The obligation is still from the student. If he or she is not willing to make use of the college as it is maintained to be used than he should step out for one who is.

Such a student wastes his own time. He wastes the time of others—professors and other students. He wastes the money which has been so painstakingly gathered for the support of higher education.

Millikin is right in expelling the student who refuses to work.

It has no time to fool with the loafer.

There is no more place for him in a good college than there is in any other job.

There has been a tendency at Millikin to stress quantity. The size of the enrollment at the beginning of each semester becomes a burning question.

Forget it.

Let Millikin look after quality in president, teacher and student.

Quantity will take care of itself.

ENGINEER BURNED ON MOTOR CAR

James Milton of Mattoon Taken to Hospital.

FLAMES SHOOT OUT

Train Crippled Near Turpin Station.

Engineer James Milton of Mattoon who operates as motorman on the Illinois Central motor car between Decatur and Mattoon was painfully burned about the face and hands at Turpin station just south of Decatur while en route to Decatur about 10:30 Monday morning.

FACE BURNED

Just what did happen is not certain but a story told by Milton as he was being taken to the hospital was that something came loose about the gasoline engine that operates the motor and flame shot out into his face. Another story was that something went wrong with the wiring causing a short circuit and a flame to shoot up into his face.

The car was disabled by whatever happened and a switch engine had to go out from Decatur to bring it into town. Milton was taken to St. Mary's hospital in Morris ambulance. It is not believed the burns will prove serious.

PRAISES ENGINEER

A Decatur passenger on the car telling of the affair states that it was ridiculous that the affair was not much more serious and praised the heroic work of Engineer Milton. The passenger states that the motor seemed to start going badly about fifteen miles out of Mattoon to Turpin where the accident happened. he said there was a sudden cloud of smoke and then a burst of flame that filled the whole engine cab around the motor.

This flame shot up all around the engineer who tried to get his motor shut off. He fought the blaze and was blistered about the face the ears and hands. The gasoline tanks just beneath the floor of the engine compartment were said to have 10 gallons of gasoline in them.

FIRST AID CAR TO BE HERE MARCH 2

Demonstrations to Be Given Over City.

Word has been received at the Red Cross office containing some details of the coming of the First Aid car to Decatur March 2. Dr. W. A. Jade and Dr. McLeod will have charge of the car which comes in over the Illinois Central. For two days the car will be in Decatur leaving here early in the morning of March 4.

TO DEMONSTRATE

Demonstrations will be given during its stay both in the city and at other points in the city. The men in charge have suggested that a demonstration be given in the high school since pupils of high school age who spend much of their time along water fronts are always keenly interested in the subject. Other demonstrations are planned if possible for the factories.

These demonstrations will be of the nature of first aid work for common injuries such as artificial respiration for apparent drowning and electric shocks. They are meant for first aid only and in no way taught to take the place of the work of a physician.

LIONS STAND TO HONOR WILSON

Wesley Barry Guest at Luncheon.

The Decatur Lions club paid tribute to the late Woodrow Wilson in a moment of silence while standing facing the east, in its meeting Monday noon. No more effective than any talk could have been the silent observance touched every man present and for some moments after the club was again seated a quiet was noticeable over the assembly.

The observance was preceded by a few remarks of Ed Hayes a member of the club. There could be no more sincere and fitting means of doing reverence to our former president than by this action on our part," he said.

BARRY A GUEST

Wesley Barry, the "Freckles" of the screen with his manager were guests of the club at luncheon. Wesley when called upon for a few words refused to make a talk saying that his place was on the screen as an entertainer.

"One thing I can say in my own behalf however," he said, "I never drove for Mable Normand," and he sat down while a roar of laughter and applause came from his audience.

THANK R. H. HEIL

The club voted its thanks to R. H. Heil and to the cast of "Am I Intruding," the comedy presented at the Lincoln Square theater last week which netted the club $1,000 toward the Opportunity Home building fund.

At the close of the meeting, a motion picture "Success in Business," picturing the value of advertising and securing good will in business, was shown to the club.

Next Monday's meeting will be devoted to a memorial to former president Woodrow Wilson.

ALLEN F. MOORE PAYS TRIBUTE

Wilson Will Occupy High Place in History.

(Special to The Review.)

Washington Feb. 4—Representative Allen F. Moore of Monticello made the following statement on the former president's passing:

"Woodrow Wilson became a national figure from comparative obscurity almost overnight. He has been one of our greatest public figures since 1912 and he has well deserved the esteem in which he is held by the American people. All of us appreciated the sincerity of his efforts and his zeal in support of those things which he believed to be best for the greatest good of all the people. As he passes into eternity his friends are comforted by the knowledge that he will occupy one of the highest places in American history.

WORSHAM ARTICLE IN PRINTER'S INK

Discusses Whether Buyers Are Responsible for High Prices

An article in Jan. 31 issue of Printer's Ink by James A. Worsham of Decatur quotes several of the buyers of the leading department and retail stores of Decatur. While no names are mentioned yet these buyers will no doubt immediately recognize their statements on the subject, "Whether buyers for retail stores are in any way responsible for high selling costs." They were interviewed by Mr. Worsham several weeks ago. Printer's Ink is a publication of national circulation devoted to various phases of advertising.

REQUEST FLAGS AT HALF-MAST

In Honor of Ex-President Wilson.

A committee from the American Legion by means of telephone and personal calls Monday morning got in touch with as many buildings and institutions in the city as was possible in order to remind them that in respect to ex-President Woodrow Wilson all flags in the city should be at half mast. According to the report of the committee Monday morning while they were at their work but one flag the one at Decatur high school, was at half mast.

FOR 30 DAYS

The American Legion requests that all persons in the city who have flag poles raise their flags to half-mast and follow that observance for thirty days. The proper procedure is to raise the flag to the top of the pole and then drop it to half mast. In taking the flag down in the evening the flag should be raised to full mast and then taken down.

MUCH INTEREST IN SAFETY PRIMERS

Illustrated By Children with Cutouts.

USED IN SCHOOLS

Ten Lessons Helped in Campaign.

In the public schools of Decatur are some illustrated primers on the question of safety which are attracting more than the usual amount of attention. The primer was written by Mr. Richeson himself who says it is the first book he ever published.

The primer is a beautiful thing. Each lesson of the little book is illustrated by freehand cutouts made by the children in one of the grades. It is not only a remarkable example of the way the little minds have grasped the idea presented to them but the whole thing has been worked out in a way that makes a beautiful book.

There are many other very splendid books which have been turned in to the office. They have the effect of causing caution in the minds not of children only but of the grownups who view the things the pupils have prepared.

TEN LESSONS

Mr. Richeson's primer reads with ten lessons.

1—THE AUTOMOBILE

See the automobile.

Automobiles are fine to ride in.

They can go fast.

Sometimes they go too fast.

LESSON 2—THE DRIVER

The man in the automobile is the driver.

The driver must be very careful.

If he is not careful he may hit some boy or girl.

He might hit a man or a woman.

Any good driver would be sorry if he hit anyone.

LESSON 3—THE SCHOOL

Our school is on ——— street.

We have ——— children in our school.

Many of these children are very small.

We must cross the streets when we come to school and go home.

We must be very careful to get across the streets safely.

LESSON 4—CROSSING THE STREETS

We shall always cross the streets at the corners.

We shall go straight across the streets.

If we cut across the streets we may get hit by an automobile.

Before we leave the sidewalk we shall look each way to see that it is safe.

LESSON 5—PLAYING IN THE STREETS

Some streets are nice and smooth.

They are nice to play on.

We will not play in the streets though.

It is not safe.

We might get hit by an automobile.

We will play on the sidewalks and on the school grounds.

LESSON 6

Many children are let out from school at one time. They run and play. They have a fine time.

Their teachers and parents love to see them have good times. They are afraid to see them play on the streets because it is not safe.

They do not make us stay on the side walks.

LESSON SEVEN—THE CRIPPLED CHILD

Do you see that poor little boy?

He is lame.

One day he ran out into the street to get his ball.

He ran out from behind an automobile which stood in the street.

Another car was coming down the street and the driver could not stop in time.

The automobile struck him and hurt his leg.

He will always be lame.

Playing in the street or running on to the street is never safe.

LESSON EIGHT—THE BROKEN CAR

That automobile is broken.

"Do you know how it was broken?"

"Yes. A man was driving down the street when a child ran out right in front of him. The man was driving slowly. To keep from hitting the child he had to turn his car quickly. He almost upset and did run into a tree. He was sorry to break his car. But he was glad that he did not hit the child.

Children should not play in the streets.

LESSON NINE—THE FUNERAL

"What is that?"

I don't know. Let's go and see."

Oh it is a funeral. I know now. It is that little girl who was struck by an automobile last Monday."

"They say the driver was going too fast."

Some say they think he was drunk.

The people were very angry at the driver.

"He is in jail now."

"Yes but that does no good the little girl any good."

I am sorry for her mamma."

I tell you I am not going to play in the street any more. It is too unsafe.

LESSON TEN—BEING CAREFUL

It is wise to be careful.

It is not safe to stand in front of automobiles until they come close and then jump out of the way.

Drivers will stop if they can to protect children who get in their way.

If they cannot stop the children get hurt.

I will try to be wise and stay out of the way of drivers.

I will help others to be careful too.

BOOK EXCHANGE IS SUCCESSFUL

Opened Monday Last Time to Sell Books.

The high school book exchange was open to sell books for the last time Monday. The exchange will redeem coupons Wednesday and Thursday. This should be attended to as all coupons and books not redeemed become the property of the exchange. Students have taken advantage of this opportunity to buy their books at reduced prices and the book exchange has proved an important part of school affairs. The figures have not been officially prepared but it is surprising at the number of books handled.

MYSTERIOUS LETTERS

In various prominent places about school Monday morning were seen the three letters M. I. F. and students have become interested. Everywhere students are asking what it all means. If some student or teacher knows he just tells them that it is a secret and that it will be announced late in the week. In the meantime the student body will wonder.

Some classes are still crowded but all time was devoted to eliminating these difficulties Monday morning. On Wednesday permanent program cards will be filled out for the records which are kept.

PLANS READY FOR GOLF PAVILION

Ask City to Pay Third At Nelson Park.

SAVE OLD BUILDING

New Roof and Stucco Walls Proposed.

C. A. Morrow representing the Decatur Golf association handed Mayor Elmer Elder a set of blue prints Monday morning showing what the golf association proposes to do in fixing up a golf shelter out of the old brick factory building located in Nelson park just off the Nelson park road.

Mr. Morrow explained that for this year the golf association proposes only to put a good roof on the building, to build a rubble stone chimney, to stucco the walls on the outside putting on a cinder floor in the building this year.

ONE THIRD OF COST

Mr. Morrow said that the golf association will stand one third of the cost the manufacturer of the composition shingle which it is proposed to use and the dealer who handles the product here will stand one third and the city is asked to stand the remaining third.

It is estimated that the improvements proposed will cost a total of about $900, the city's share being about $300.

SAVE OLD BUILDING

Mr. Morrow explained that in this way the old building can be saved and made of real use the coming season as a shelter and that the interior improvements which will be wanted can be added later as money is available.

The council took no action but it is expected that the chance to get a $900 improvement and one that is much needed for the golf ground for less than $300 will appeal to the mayor and the other park officials.

MINISTERS DEBATE ON SUNDAY SCHOOL

Twenty Hear Discussion At Y. M. C. A.

Much interest was taken in the meeting of the Ministerial association in the Betzer library at the Y. M. C. A., Monday morning which consisted mainly of a debate on the method of running Sunday schools. The question was "Resolved that Sunday schools as they are usually conducted are detrimental to public worship."

The affirmative was taken by Rev. H. J. Powell of St. Paul's Methodist church and the negative side of the question was handled by Rev. C. J. Rogers of the First Church of God.

LACK REVERENCE

Mr. Powell took the stand that the Sunday schools fail in the teaching of reverence and that many teachers come to the class room poorly prepared for the work. He pointed out a lack of unity between the Sunday school and the church saying that it existed as though the two were ... independent.

In discussing the negative side Mr. Rodgers took the ground opposite to Mr. Powell in the matter of reverence denying that the school does not teach reverence. He finds further that while some of the teachers are ill prepared many of them make very excellent preparation for their work. Another point in his ... was the ... percentage of Sunday school attendants who join the churches.

Twenty ministers were out for the meeting, the debate filling the time. The only ... business before the organization Rev. W. H. Abrigs served as secretary in the absence of Rev. Russell V. Papson who is out of the city.

ROTARY HEARS OF MASONIC HOMES

Owen Scott Gives Talk And Shows Pictures

The various Masonic homes in the state were described by Owen Scott at the Monday noon meeting of the Rotary club, the talk being accompanied by a series of colored slides showing scenes about the homes at Sullivan and LaGrange.

Preceding the talk by Mr. Scott Miss Florence Lamme a resident in the Knights of Pythias home for children here since her childhood and a graduate of the Decatur high schools played two violin solos accompanied by Miss Alice Jefferson.

ELMER LYONS SINGS

After the talk by Mr. Scott Elmer Lyons accompanied on the piano by Rufus Peabody sang "Home Sweet Home."

Robert Mueller was fellowship chairman of the day and it is expected that a talk on the Mellon tax plan will be a feature at some meeting this month as a showing of hands indicated a desire on the part of the members to hear about it.
